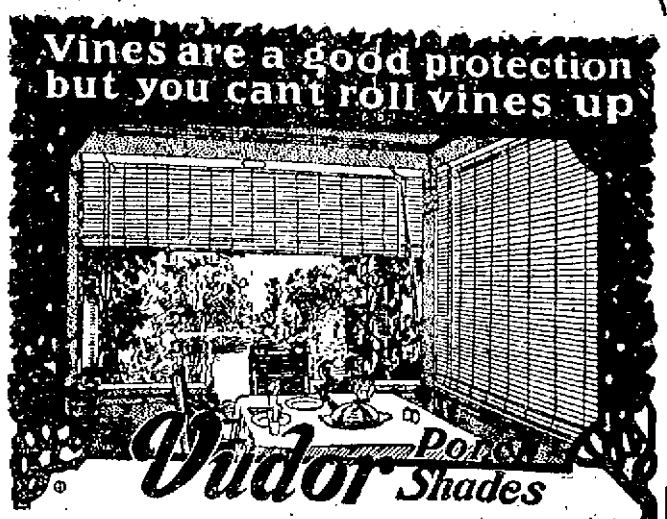
Vines are a good protection but you can't roll vines up



Form as good a porch protection as vines themselves. They're attractive and cool, make a perfect protection against the sun and against prying eyes, can be raised or lowered as easily and as readily as a window shade and do not shut out a breath of air to make a porch close and stifling. They are the ideal porch shade and are so strongly made that they will withstand the severest weathering for years without ever showing the effect of it.

HADLEY'S MOTION LAID ON TABLE.

Roll-Call by States Results in Decisive Vote of 569 to 498.

Question Was on Substitution of Minority for Majority Report on Credentials.

CHICAGO, June 21.—The Roosevelt forces met their defeat in the national Republican convention this afternoon. By a vote of 569 to 499 the convention voted to table a resolution of Governor Hadley which would have prevented any of the contested delegates voting on any of the cases reported by the credentials committee. The first vote, on Temporary Chairman Root's election, was 558 to 502. The second, on Hadley's original proposal to the same effect, was 564 to 510.

Ventilators set for 11 o'clock the Coliseum

With the hour of convening the convention set for 11 o'clock the Coliseum filled slowly and 15 minutes before the gavel fell scores of seats were still empty. There was far less excitement than at yesterday's opening.

From then on there was a season of mild demonstration. The Roosevelt delegates in the Pennsylvania delegation had a new cry, the refrain of which was "Sixty-five Roosevelt," referring to the 65 delegates lead by Senator Penrose.

William J. Bryan was given another noisy welcome as he entered the press stands. Several delegates called "Speech! Speech, Bryan!" and the band played "Should auld acquaintance be forgot?" Mr. Bryan smiled and waved his hand, but made no speech.

The gallery filled up very slowly and 10 minutes after the scheduled time for calling the convention to order hundreds of chairs were vacant.

High above the noise from shuffling feet and shifting chairs, throughout the big auditorium, rang out a clear soprano in a coon song. A handsome woman, dressed in a blue tailored suit and wearing a big red hat, appeared far up in the band stand just under the steel girders of the roof, and accompanied by the orchestra sang several songs.

At 11:20 word came from the credentials committee that opposition to a partial report had arisen. Pending further word from the committee Chairman Root bade no move to call the convention to order.

In the lull the New Jersey delegates arose in their seats and delivered the Jersey yell which has become familiar in the convention. West Virginia answered the Jerseys and the shrill shriek of the Californians joined in for a time. But the demonstration did not develop and the yelling subsided. Then Pennsylvania began cheering. Again it subsided and the crowd settled back to await the fall of the gavel.

At 45 minutes beyond the scheduled hour for convening Chairman Root, Senator Crane, James Watson, Governor Hadley, Senator Borah, former Governor Fort of New Jersey and the other leaders of both factions sat idly on the platform. Hadley and Crane engaged, smilingly, in conversation while they were waiting word from the credentials committee.

When the convention was finally called to order it took but a moment to secure order.

As usual the whole gathering stood during the prayer of Rev. John B. Shaw of Chicago. The prayer, which was much longer than that at any previous session, was not applauded as yesterday. One man in the rear gallery shouted "Amen."

When Mr. Shaw had concluded Senator Root said: "The business in order is the report of the committee on credentials. He introduced W. T. Dovell of Washington, a member of the committee, who submitted the report, favoring the seating of the Taft delegates in the Ninth Alabama district.

R. H. McCormick of Illinois, a Roosevelt leader, was on his feet calling for recognition. Chairman Root, however, directed the reading of the report, which went into details of the contest and said that a full hearing had been granted by the committee.

Scattering applause greeted the conclusion of the report.

Governor Hadley of Missouri, floor leader of the Roosevelt forces, introduced R. P. McCormick of Illinois to submit a minority report. McCormick, waving a document, said the minority of the committee had asked permission to file a minority report, but it had been refused. McCormick, waving a document, said them inority of the committee had asked permission to file a minority report, but it had been refused. McCormick said the facts in the case would be given the convention at a later moment.

Then ensued an incident which aroused the ire of Senator Root. He had begun to state the position he had taken in the matter by saying, "While, strictly speaking, there can be no such thing as a minority report," when he was interrupted by an outburst of groans, boos and hisses.

Mr. Root pounded vigorously for order and when quiet was restored he walked defiantly to the front of the stage. "Gentlemen of the convention," he shouted; "it will be well when the chairman begins a sentence to wait until he concludes it." This statement was greeted with applause.

Senator Root then concluded by saying it was customary for the minority to present its views to the convention informally and that custom would be followed. He directed that the views of the minority as presented by McCormick be read for the information of the convention.

The report protested also against the sitting on the credentials committee of five members who had been members of the national committee, because they had passed upon the contests. In conclusion the repot recommended the seating of the Roosevelt men from the Ninth Alabama district.

When the reading had been concluded Governor Hadley moved that the minority report favoring the seating of the Roosevelt delegates be substituted for the majority. Heney of California seconded the motion. An unknown delegate moved to table the motion.

Mr. Dovell from the committees, secured unanimous consent to make a five-minute talk. The delegates listened impatiently, as though they already had made up their minds and were anxious to vote.

Chairman Root announced that it was Robert J. Walker, a Virginia delegate, who had made the motion to lay on the table, but had withdrawn it at the request of his delegation, to allow Governor Hadley to make a motion which otherwise would have been excluded under the rules.

When Governor Hadley was recognized for the motion he was cheered. He began to talk from the floor, but Root, quieting the demonstration said: "It is evidently the wish of the convention that you should take the platform." A storm of applause broke as Hadley started up the aisle.

After he reached the platform Governor Hadley made his motion, which was a renewal of the fight to oust all contested delegates from voting. He sought to bar 72 delegates from casting their ballots until such time as their own cases had been determined. The original Hadley list contained 92 delegates when first presented, Tuesday it was scaled at 78, and today it was 72.

Wadsworth of New York opposed the motion by Hadley and raised the point of order that the chair had already ruled that only the delegates specifically concerned in any given case were ineligible to vote.

Chairman Root overruled the point of order, but said he did so because he wanted the convention to pass on a point so vitally important to the interest of the Republican party.

Root, advancing to the front of the stage, said the parliamentary argument supported the point of order. "But" he continued "it is to the general interest of the Republican party that it should be passed upon and settled by the convention. The chairman will therefore entertain the motion."

James E. Watson of Indiana, the Taft floor leader, moved to lay the motion of Governor Hadley on the table. A roll-call was demanded and seconded, and was ordered.

Heney interrupted, demanding to know if the 72 contested seats were to be allowed to vote on the motion. Senator Root said that the two sitting members from the Ninth Alabama district, whose right to seats was involved, would not be allowed to vote. All the other on the temporary roll would vote.

Heney protested that the rights of the 72 delegates were involved and made a point of order to that effect.

"Overruled," said Mr. Root.

"I expected it" shouted back Heney.

Hadley's motion was tabled—Yeas, 569; nays 498.

ALL DECIDED FOR TAFT.

Credentials Committee Settles Only 14 of 72 Vital Contests.

CHICAGO, June 21.—After an all-night session the credentials committee of the Republican national convention had at 6 o'clock this morning settled only 14 of the 72 contests considered vital by Governor Hadley and the Roosevelt leaders in their appeal from the decision of the national committee. All of them, together with 20 that the credentials committee took up on its own initiative, were settled for President Taft.

The decisions were: Alabama, Ninth district, two delegates; Arizona, Sixth delegates at large; Arkansas, Fifth district, two delegates; California, Fourth district, two delegates; Florida, six delegates at large and two each from the First, Second and Third districts; Georgia, four delegates at large; Indiana, four delegates at large; and two from the Thirteenth district.

Other delegates where contests were not re-opened were declared seated by a unanimous vote of the committee. California's two delegates—Taft delegates—were seated by the committee at 5:45 o'clock this morning. A motion to seat the Roosevelt delegates was defeated 28 to 16. Personalities and political rancor were practically absent. For an hour and a half the committee members, wearied by more than 24 hours of work debated the right of California to instruct for Roosevelt by a state wide majority the Taft delegates elected in the Fourth district. Debate of the California case followed the receipt of what was termed "an insulting letter" from the Roosevelt delegates—Charles S. Wheeler and Philip Bancroft, refusing to appear and declining to recognize that a contest existed.

The California case was taken up at 4:20 a. m. L. N. Mitchell of Pennsylvania, a member of the committee, presented the letter from the California Roosevelt delegates. It contained language which members considered objectionable and the committee ordered it returned to the California delegates "without comment." A motion to seat the Taft delegates brought a request from Roosevelt members for an opportunity to discuss the case that provoked the attack from the Roosevelt force on the national committee. "I believe if the two delegates from California who were elected by a state majority of 77,000 are seated," said Mr. Halbert of Minnesota, "it will mean the death knell of the national committee." Mr. Louder of North Dakota expressed similar sentiments.

O. D. Landstrom of Montana declared under such a precedent that the city of New York, by a primary vote, could completely dominate the entire delegation from the state.

Representative Mondell of Wyoming declared he had intended to vote for the two Roosevelt delegates "out of regard for the sentiment of the majority of the voters in California."

"I would have so voted", he added, "if it had not been for the gratuitous insult given the committee by the California delegates. I shall not vote my convictions, nor my sentiments."

Representative Mabry of New York declared that Charles Murphy of Tammany Hall had 90 votes in his pocket at Baltimore as the result of the unit rule. A precedent which would place all of a state's delegates at the mercy of the popular state majority would give New York city practical control of one tenth of the delegates to the Republican national convention.

"I don't want a precedent established here," he said, "that will give to a single city the control over the entire state, which in turn exercises a large control over the Republican national convention, and its selection of a candidate. When I see a man like Charles Murphy with 90 Democratic delegates to be delivered to whom he sees fit, I tremble to think what would happen if any Republican had such control over the nomination in a Republican national convention."

The Roosevelt strength on the California vote gained J. A. Dewitt of Iowa, W. W. Williams of Nevada, L. P. Summers, of Virginia, S. H. Cady of Wisconsin and C. A. Rice of Hawaii. Francis J. Heney of California, Ralph A. Harrison of Kansas, E. C. Carrington of Maryland, R. R. McCormick of Illinois and J. J. Sullivan of Ohio, all Roosevelt men, were absent when the California vote was taken.

Daylight found the credentials committee room and hallway partly filled with sleeping or nodding committee members and contesting delegates. More than 40 of the 52 members stuck to the work throughout the night, while delegations waiting to be heard dropped to sleep in the hallways.

The committee worked far into the morning over the Indiana contests. Beginning before midnight on the contest for delegates at large, where former Senators Beveridge and Hemenway were pitted against each other, the Indiana contests were not concluded until after 4:15 a. m. Senator Beveridge and his associate Roosevelt contestants were defeated, 34 to 14. The committee seated the Taft delegates at large—Charles W. Fairbanks, Harry S. New, James F. Watson and Joseph D. Oliver.

TAFT A STRONG FAVORITE.

Roosevelt Apparently Out of the Race in the Convention.

CHICAGO, June 21.—Delegates to the fifteenth Republican national convention, frankly tired and eager to return to their homes, today prepared for decisive action at the Coliseum after three days of skirmishing firing between the Taft and Roosevelt forces, which has resulted in nothing tangible.

It was evident this morning that the temper of the delegates and not the schemes of the leaders would hold first place in the next 12 hours of the convention deliberations. With this fact in view, members of the credentials committee worked all night long in efforts to have something approximating a complete report for submission to the convention when it is called to order today.

The fourth day of the convention opened with President Taft a strong favorite for re-nomination, the possibility of a third candidate as second choice in the betting, and Colonel Roosevelt apparently out of the race so far as this particular convention is concerned.

Ordinarily in Republican national convention procedure a candidate for President would have been nominated yesterday, the third day, and the only business remaining for the convention today would be the selection of a Vice Presidential candidate and adjournment. Now, as the program runs, the report of the credentials committee may require a vote by individual delegates, and perhaps also the report of the committee on rules.

If the convention actually gets down to the point of nominations this week it will be late Saturday, unless there is a decision to adjourn the sessions to next week. Every effort today was directed toward closing the convention Saturday afternoon or night. Officials of the national convention joined with leaders on both sides of the fight to achieve this end. However, it was stated that this could not be expected unless a certain faction gives its consent to the advancement of the general business of the convention.

The managers of President Taft's campaign for re-nomination today asserted that the President already is assured of a majority of 16 or 18 votes when the roll-call on the Presidential nomination comes. William Barnes of New York declared that he knew positively that the President would have at least 10 votes over the necessary number to nominate and that he expected this majority would be increased by six or more votes.

There was much conjecture and gossip this morning as to the exact number of delegates whom Roosevelt could persuade to stand with him. Outside of California, Pennsylvania, and possibly Kansas it was predicted that he would have comparatively little support among delegates on any proposition which might compromise the "regularity" of the men who followed him. For, in the last analysis, the Roosevelt followers plainly demonstrated that they were willing to do almost anything for Colonel Roosevelt but, as it is known in racing parlance, "go the route." When it came right down to the point of burning all their bridges behind them and taking their chances, win or lose, there was a scurrying to get from under and the colonel was left holding the bag. Governor Hadley of Missouri, Governor Deneen of Illinois and Senator Borah of Idaho served notice that they would not join in a third party movement or in a bolt form the regular convention. Other leaders of nearly equal prominence did likewise.

President Taft's stock went up the scale at an amazing rate once it became known that the unanimity of the Roosevelt plans had been broken. Hadley, it was said, did not mince words in making his position clear, and Colonel Roosevelt plainly indicated his surprise at the turn matters had taken.

Meanwhile the veteran leaders in command of the Taft campaign used their political genius adroitly for the purpose of disintegrating the Roosevelt support. As to "dark horse" possibilities, Congressman McKinley, President Taft's campaign manager, insisted that at no time had he considered a third candidate. All talk of a compromise candidate, he said, had come from the Roosevelt men and

STANDS READY TO LEAD NEW PARTY.

Roosevelt Offers to Become Candidate of Progressives.

Willing to Make the Fight, if Desired, Win or Lose.

CHICAGO, June 20.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt gave out a statement late today, in which he declared that if the Progressives desire to start a new party he is ready to become their candidate for President.

"If," he said, "those fervent in this great fight for the rule of the people and for social and industrial justice, which has now become a clean-cut fight for honesty against dishonesty, fraud and theft, desire me to lead the fight, I will do so. I shall make my appeal to al honest men, East and West, North and South, and gladly abide the result, whatever that result may be."

The colonel declared that he declined to regard as binding any nomination that the Republican national convention as now constituted, may make. "I do not regard successful fraud and deliberate political theft as constituting a title to party regularity, or a claim to the support of any honest man of any party," was the former President's announcement of his renunciationof the great political organization which made him the nation's chief executive for two terms.

In the event that his offer to lead a new party is accepted, Colonel Roosevelt promised to fight the campaign through, win or lose, even if he did not receive a single electoral vote. "I have nothing to offer any man; any man who supports me will do so without hope of gain and at the risk of personal loss and discomfort," was his warning to his followers

The national convention itself marked time, waiting for the credentials committee to complete its consideration on the contested delegates. The committee planned to work throughout tonight, so as to report to the convention when it meets at 11 a. m.

Colonel Roosevelt said emphatically tonight that he would make the independent fight for the Presidency if he was convinced there was a popular demand for him. "I shall have to see if there is a popular demand for me to run," he said.

He added that the situation was such a kaleidoscopic one that it would be impossible for him to outline what he would do. It might take some time, he said, to ascertain the sentiment of the people and learn whether there was a reasonable basis for the formation of what he termed a "progressive party."

The colonel himself said he believed he would be able to count on the support of the bulk of the Republicans in the Western states, and that he would expect to derive considerable strength from the Democrats. He would not express any opinion how soon after the adjournment of the present convention the new party would be formed should such a decision be reached.

Whether it would be held in Chicago or elsewhere, and whether it would be delayed until after the Democratic national convention, were points on which no information could be obtained from those in the confidence of the former President. The opinion was expressed by some of his supporters that the outcome at Baltimore would have a considerable bearing upon the situation.

Colonel Roosevelt said there had been some differences of opinion among his supporters as to the advisability of bolting. The Ohio delegates, he said, felt that under their instructions they should remain in the convention until after the nomination was made. Other delegates, including some of those from California, were in favor of withdrawing at once.

"Any man nominated by this convention as now composed," he reiterated, "will not be tolerated by the Roosevelt delegates."

It was explained that one of the chief reasons of the Roosevelt delegates for deciding not to withdraw from the convention was the action taken today by the rules committee, which would enable the national committee to fill the seats thus vacated by the selection of other delegates.

The plan of action adopted by the Roosevelt leaders is an abrupt change from the position which was taken by Colonel Roosevelt and his closest adherents yesterday, but they denied tonight that it was an admission of weakness on their part.

"This is the shrewdest move we have made," said one of the leaders. "It will enable us to hold a genuine Republican convention without having it said that we bolted. Every act which is accomplished by fraudulent votes is illegal. The action of the fraudulently elected chairman in declaring the convention finally adjourned will, therefore, be illegal and we shall recognize it as we shall every other act of the convention. We will remain in our seats and proceed with the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt, after having seated the 78 Roosevelt delegates who are entitled to seats and who have been excluded."

The agreement finally arrived at was reached at a caucus in which two representatives from each of the states having Roosevelt delegates, as well as those states from which the Roosevelt candidates for seats in the convention have been excluded.

"The caucus passed unanimously a resolution introduced by Henry Allen of Kansas," said Colonel Roosevelt, in explaining the situation. "This resolution was to the effect that the Republican party would not submit to having the nomination determined by theft and if the convention declined to seat the delegates fraudulently unseated by the national committee the Roosevelt delegates would decline to stand by the action of the convention.

"A second resolution was passed later, stipulating that the Roosevelt delegates would take part in the convention if the 78 delegates, to which we are entitled, were seated, and if they were not seated, they would remain in the convention and not participate in it."

The text of these resolutions was not made public.

Colonel Roosevelt explained that the action of the caucus did not mean that any delegates would bolt, but they reserved the right to take what course they preferred as to leaving the convention.

Roosevelt leaders said it was the unanimous decision of their men that they would not quit the hall. When the convention is over, they will continue to hold their seats and proceed to effect their own organization.

Colonel Roosevelt made it plain that he would not supprt any compromise candidate nominated by the convention as at present constituted. He declined to make any statement in regard to Governor Hadley or any other individual, confining himself to an explanation of his general position.

After Colonel Roosevelt had personally discussed the tense situation of the afternoon, he and Governor Stubbs conferred for some time. When the governor had left the conference room he, too, announced "that there would be no bolt."

"This talk of a blot is foolish," said Governor Stubbs. "Colonel Roosevelt never talked about a bolt."

"Is there a differentiation?" the governor was asked, "between a bolt and a 'split' in the party?"

"That is a question which the colonel should answer himself, but I want to say that the Kansas delegation voted today that it would not bolt."

After the late afternoon conference in the Florentine room of the Congress Hotel, where the Roosevelt state delegates and campaign leaders counselled together, this formal statement was issued from Campaign Manager Dixon's headquarters:

"The Roosevelt delegates at the meeting in the Florentine room this afternoon decided that they will not permit the title to the presidency of the United States to be stolen

"If the action of the convention on the report of the committee on credentials does not remove from the roll of delegates the names fraudulently placed there by the national committee, the Roosevelt forces will refuse to be bound by the action of the convention."

EXTRA APPROPRIATIONS.

day he presumed Dr. Huntington would not care for his ground to be used on that day.

Alderman Hughes said he had seen Rev. Mr. Dinan of St. George's School in regard to the use of that playground by the sailors. He said requests for the use of the grounds by others had been declined by the governors, but he thought such a request from the city would be granted. He suggested, however, that the ground is so far from the car line and so much time would be taken in reaching it and returning that it would not be available for the purpose suggested, and this seemed to Mr. Hughes to be so.

As to the Gammell lot, he fund that is rented for the hay, and that seemed to take it out of the list.

From the Trojan base ball club he had an offer of Wellington park on such days as it is desired, except Saturdays and Sundays, for which the club has already made arrangements; July 4 and Labor day. The price would be $5 per day when used; this to include the services of the keeper to sprinkle the ground and have it in condition for use.

This seemed to exhaust the available places, though Alderman McLeish thought there was a lot on Harrison avenue. He was not very definite, however.

The matter of how much was to be asked from the Council for floats and playgrounds next came up. There is the lighting. Mr. Albro said there are two lights of 100 candle power on each of five landing places. The grass would need to be cut on the playgrounds other than Wellington park. Then there was the rental of floats. He suggested asking for $2,000. This seemed too much, but all that will be used is what is absolutely necessary; the balance will remain in the treasury. Mr. Shepeley thought $1,000 would be enough. Some figuring was done. It could not be told how many days Wellington park might be needed, but 60 was taken as a possible number, and with the cost of lights and floats $1,380 was figured up. It was therefore voted to ask the Council for $1,500 for the purposes named.

Mr. Albro said he had been requested by the Newport Beach Association to ask the board to recommend the appropriation of $1,200 additional for new work at the beach. Toilets are needed in the west section, it is proposed to put in shower baths in the same buildings, and there are a number of things to be done. This work could now be done much more cheaply with the men at work on the beach than it could later. Mr. Leddy said $1,300 which had been designated for grading was to be used with this $1,200.

Then there was a long discussion as to what could and would be done. Alderman Hughes held that the board could make no changes in the plans, as they had been formally approved by the voters at the December election. The city solicitor was called in and said that even the Representative Council could not change those plans and the vote of the people must be followed. Mr. Leddy said the plans had been materially changed. It was found impossible to go ahead with the work according to them and a number of changes had been made.

The report of the committee on the beach improvements made to the Council last November was brought out and therein was found an item of $1,350 for grading and sowing grass seed. The ballot voted on by the taxpayers at the city election was produced and the reading of the proposition was considered. It was stated that there was no place to be graded, as the entire space would be covered with buildings or used as yard.

The city solicitor said that, while the wish of the voters was evidently to have the plan submitted to the Council carried out, there were possibilities which might interfere. The board in carrying on the work might find conditions such that changes are needed which the taxpayers could not have foreseen. If there is no place to be graded it would obviously be foolish to spend money for grading. In such a case the money would revert back to the treasury. It was agreed that when the people voted no detailed specifications had been made; there was only a picture and the general plans outlined by the committee.

Finally it was decided to bring the matter to the Council's attention so that it could take action and so that the Beach Company could appear before the Council and explain what it proposes to do, the Board should vote to recommend the appropriation of $2,500 for proposed additions to the Pars. With this should go the explanation that $1,300 originally planned would not be spent, so that the appropriation would be in fact but an addition of $1,200 to the beach improvement. The board did not formally pass on the plans. It had no right to do so, but merely passed the vote to enable the Council to take action as seems best.

Chief Kirwin reported, on the petition of the Beach Company for a fire alarm box at the beach, that there are no funds available for such work. It was suggested that the beach improvement fund might supply the money, but then it was a question if a fire alarm box is an improvement. It was thought that a box might be desirable there and it was voted to recommend to the Council the appropriation of $150 for installing one.

Chief Kirwin reported on the matter of accommodations for the fleet patrol that quarters could be supplied at the Sevens' house. The big room upstairs could be used and the men have the run of the lower floor, just as at headquarters. There would be no sleeping accommodations, however. The patrol at headquarters has been no trouble; the men have acted finely and everything has worked well while they have used that place as headquarters. No action was considered necessary by the board.

At 9:07, after more than an hour of pretty busy work, the board adjourned.

MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS' LEAGUE.

[Boston Transcript.]

The New York State Motion Picture Exhibitors' League has been organized with a membership of 300. Its object is "to promote the welfare of the exhibitors and to fight adverse legislation." It is not stated whether the term "adverse" is to apply solely to the showmen's interests or not. But it would be well that the motion picture men have in mind, partly at least, the public welfare, and especially the young children, upon whose pennies so many of these shows now depend so largely. There is a reform movement now in progress in Boston which has thus far not had much publicity. And it is encouraging to state that already a large proportion of the managers of the cheaper shows in Boston are interested and willing to co-operate with parents and teachers in giving a fair proportion of pictures of educational value.

Fly suppression was undertaken in Quincy last year by enforcing greater cleanliness in the care of garbage and manure.

AT GRAMMAR GRADUATION.

Superintendent Lull Urges Co-Operation of Parents, Professor Perrin the Value of Personality.

At the grammar graduation at the Rogers High School Thursday afternoon the attendance was not so large as usual, presumably on account of the circus.

After the chorus, "Flower of Liberty," Marshall, Superintendent of School Lull greeted the parents. He spoke of the opportunity offered the boys and girls to go on learning in high school. Today not only scholarship, effort and deportment are required, but enjoyment of life in the highest sense. Mr. Lull urged the parents to aid the teachers in their work for their pupils who will find enduring satisfaction in working for their fellows.

The song, "When the Roses Bloom Again," Adams, was sung and the speaker of the afternoon, Professor Marshall Livingston Perrin of Boston University, not having arrived, the King and Brown medals for amiability were awarded to Evelyn Agnes Sullivan, Coddington; Ebba Sophia Appelgren, Mumford, and Margaret Matthews Campbell, Cranston, the last-named the younger daughter of Principal Dudley E. Campbell of Coddington. In presenting the medals Rev. Emery H. Porter, D. D., of the School Committee, said he hoped that before long these medals would be given for scholarship rather than for amiability. He congratulated the girls, however, on having amiable, lovable characters. Judging from the applause the girls who received the medals must be favorites.

The Read, Pelt and Brown medals for scholarship were awarded to Thomas William Joseph Lyons, Jr., Coddington; William King Durfee, Mumford, and Reginald Stevens Kimball, Cranston, by Rev. Martin F. Reddy of the School Committee. He congratulated the boys, saying he hoped the receiving of these medals was but the first step towards higher honors and greater rewards.

The chorus sang "The Red Scarf," Bonheur, and Professor Perrin, who has been heard in Newport before, gave a characteristic, helpful address to the graduates. Professor Perrin does not forget the age of his auditors and well illustrates his points. By way of introduction the speaker said the awarding of medals is but representative of the interest felt in all the graduates individually. This is an age in which the individual counts more than ever before. If all do their best the time may come when those who deserve a fortune will have it.

Professor Perrin then spoke of the value of personality, which means a great deal to employers. The essentials of personality are doing everything as well as one can, being punctual, the cultivation of good manners, good personal appearance, self-control and willingness to take advice. In conclusion the speaker said the best way of acquiring a strong personality is through love to God and love to man; making the best of one's self and helping others to do the same.

"In the Harbor we've been Sheltered", Veazie, was sung and the diplomas were awarded by Miss Anna F. Hunter of the School Committee in the absence of Dr. Christopher Frank Barker, chairman of the board. The exercises closed by the song, "Our Public School," Skelly, and the benediction pronounced by Father Reddy.

The music was in charge of Henry Stuart Hendy, supervisor of music, and Miss Marguerite L. Ferrin, assistant in music, pianist.

At the close of the exercises the King festival—ice cream, cake and dancing was enjoyed in the gymnasium.

SOCIAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

ART ASSOCIATION INCORPORATED.

At a meeting of the officers and council of the Art Association of Newport, Thursday, papers of incorporation were drawn up by Mr. Max Levy, with the following signers; W. Sergeant Kendall, Charles Biesel, John Elliott, Mrs. John Elliott, Albert Sterner, Miss Helen Sturtevant, Miss Jeanette H. Swasey, Rev. John B. Dinan. The exhibition planned bids fair to be a great success, many prominent artists from different parts of the country having promised to contribute. The Association now has a large membership, and the officers are well chosen to promote it's welfare.

SPINNING THE GREAT WHEEL.

[Robert Louis Stevenson.]

For still the Lord is Lord of might,
In deeds, in deeds He takes delight,
The plow, the spear, the laden barks,
The field, the founded city marts;
He makes the smiler of the streets.
The singer upon garden seats;
He sees the climber in the rocks;
To Him, she shepherd folds his flocks.
For those He loves that undertrap
With daily virtues heaven's top,
And bear the falling sky with ease,
Unfrowning caryatides.
Those He approves that ply the trade,
That rock the child, that wed the maid.
That with weak virtues, weaker hands,
Sew gladness on the peopled lands,
And still with laughter, song and shout,
Spin the great wheel of the earth about.

SCHOONER ELENA TO RACE IN CLASS B.

Racing schooner Elena, built last year at the Herreshoff shops in Bristol for former Commodore Morton F. Plant of New London, is to have her racing measurement reduced in order that she may be eligible to compete in a smaller class than the one in which she has been sailing this season, and in which she has been beaten a number of times. The Elena when she leaves Bristol will be a candidate for the B class of schooners, with the Queen and Irolita, instead of sailing against the Atlantic in the top of the A class of schooners.

IF you want your children to grow up sturdy and strong, give them cocoa to drink.

But—be sure it's the right kind of cocoa. The cocoa from which the heavy indigestible oil has been removed.

Doctors have decided that cocoa oil is not good for delicate stomachs.

"The oil of cocoa does not belong to the food fats, being different in constitution," says Dr. W. S. Hall, of Northwestern University.

Rockwood's Cocoa
"The healthful cocoa with the lighter color"

has the delicacy of taste and delicious fragrance of chocolate but—the excess of indigestible oil has been taken out—and all the nourishing qualities have been improved.

Rockwood's Cocoa is the ideal wholesome drink for every member of the family. Try a steaming cup of the healthful, light-colored cocoa in the morning and note your feeling of increased efficiency.

TEN PAGES.

ANTICIPATING "CLEAN-UP" DAY.

Agitation is a good thing, especially when it serves to call people's attention to a condition which they know to be wrong, but which in common with others they have never made any attempt to make better. The "clean-up" movement in Newport is a case in point. When the discussion began the community, so far as individual effort was concerned, was indifferent to the matter of greater cleanliness. The agitation continued, however—"line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little and there a little"—until a start in the reform was made. The improvement was so slow that workers were often discouraged and feared that beautiful Newport was so given to its uncleanly habits that there would be no change.

It now seems light is really breaking through the darkness, and improvement is noted all along the line. The announcement of a "clean-up" day has induced people heretofore indifferent to the condition of their premises to look to their surroundings and whole neighborhoods are greatly improved by the attention given them. There will be much less work for the "cleaners" to do tomorrow because of the initiative manifest all over the city. The condition gives promise of the good time coming, when a man will not only be known by the company he keeps but by the condition of his dooryard.

THE LOCATION OF THE WILD WEST SHOW.

The change of location for the Wild West Show from the One Mile Corner to the Middleton Avenue lot was not pleasing to many who attended. There is no comparison between the two places as a site for an outdoor performance. The Middleton Avenue ground is apt to be wet, is so much a neighborhood for grog shops as to make the locality anything but an agreeable one for most people to visit, and is reached by but one line of street cars. The lot at the Mile Corner is ideal. It is dry, the air is sweet, and the neighborhood all that can be desired. Moreover, it is reached by three lines of street cars, with ample room for the proper handling of traffic.

When The Daily News a few years ago succeeded in changing the site for such performances from Middleton avenue to Broadway, the result was so gratifying to the public that it was not supposed that ever again the poorer place would be used. It is believed that measures were taken to cause the selection of Middleton Avenue for Thursday's site which are known only to the few men who reaped a substantial profit from the change.

AS TO BOLTING.

When delegates seceded from the Democratic conventions in Charleston and Baltimore in 1860 there was no trouble in understanding the issue. The Republican party was formed four years before not exactly by a bolt, but by secession from the existing parties, mainly but not entirely from the Whig, and the issues were perfectly distinct. They were so notoriously well known that it was hardly necessary to specify them in a platform.

On what issues a part of the Republican party proposes to bolt the Chicago nomination there is only the vaguest information. The specific occasion cited is the membership of the convention, but that is really only incidental. The real cause lies back of that and while the name of progressivism is given to it, no one knows exactly what things the progressives would do or what things they denounce which the regular Republicans do.

Furthermore, the chances of a bolt are not bright. Roosevelt may suppose that he can take the larger part of the Republican party and split the Solid South and be elected, but we take it that he has not been able to infuse this enthusiasm into many of his followers. Few men have any doubt that if he should run independently both he and the candidate of the convention would be defeated.

There are many of Roosevelt's followers who would not like to bring that about. To leave the Republican party would end the political careers of many of them. To turn the country and their own states over to the Democrats would make it very difficult for them to live at home for the next few years. Bryan is still fighting the Democrats who bolted his nomination in 1896. They had a perfectly clear and well defined issue, and the issue is now almost universally regarded as obsolete. Yet Bryan and many of his followers wage war upon them at every opportunity. If the men who would follow Roosevelt into a third party are actuated by principle well and good; let virtue be its own reward in their cases. But several of the Roosevelt leaders have given notice that they will not desert their party. Roosevelt can afford to do it; he's already had all he can receive from it.

INSTRUCTION AS TO INVESTMENTS.

Colleges and universities are realizing so fully the need of instruction regarding not only the rudiments of a business education, but also the matter of investments, that courses of this character are being added to the curriculum in not a few such institutions. This action is not perhaps the direct result of the knowledge that many people are proving easy dupes of those who seek to bleed unwary and too credulous investors out of their money, but it undoubtedly has some connection with that situation and in any event it is proving of much importance and benefit in giving those who take the courses information which puts them on their guard against fraudulent financial schemes and preventing them and those with whom they are connected from being swindled in this manner. That there is manifest need of instruction of this sort is amply shown by the every-day experiences of many people in this country, where wild-cat money schemes abound and millions of dollars are lost annually through this means. It is well, therefore, that something should be done in the way of preparing the youths who enter college so that they may be proof against the wiles of these fake promoters.

While such instruction has already done much good among the young men of the country, the vast majority of those who are bitten by these schemes are not of the class who will or can receive this preparation for distinguishing between real and fictitious financial enterprises and must must fall back upon common sense. If they have no advisers or will not use those who are available to warn them against what is unsafe in the line of investments. It would seem as though common sense ought to be a good guide in this connection, but the facts show that it is not and that many men lose their heads when they are making investments and put their money into get-rich-quick schemes which they ought to know cannot realize the promises made by glib-tongued promoters. For such persons there does not seem to be much hope of escape from the toils of the schemers unless those who are fooling them are caught by the authorities and punished, and even then the chances are not good that the money invested will be recovered. Instruction and full publicity, however, are two of the best means of bringing to naught fake schemes of this sort.

THE VALUE OF PRIMARIES.

It is not to be denied that Roosevelt had overwhelming majorities in most of the states in which Presidential primaries were held, and he is not entirely inexcusable for insisting, upon the strength of these, that he is the choice of the people. The claim, however, is much more imposing on its face than when analyzed.

In the first place, there should be a uniform method of selecting delegates. If Presidential primaries exist in only a part of the states their results cannot be conclusive. If in 10 states where there were such primaries there were majorities for Roosevelt it does not follow that in 36 other states there would be. Apart from the primaries delegates are not now elected by a uniform method and in some states the practice is highly favorable to the rule of bosses. The state convention ought not to select more than the delegates at large. If the state convention is to name all the delegates the boss who can control the convention, like the head of Tammany Hall in New York, can name all the delegates and disfranchise a large minority, and in some cases an actual majority, of the voters of his party.

Where primaries are held, while the results may be more likely to reflect public opinion than the selections by local conventions, they are not certain to do so unless the voters very generally participate in them. This year less than half the voters in several states participated, and while it is proper that their wishes should be respected no one is bound to assume that they represent the voting strength of their party. It happens many times that those who do not participate in a preliminary contest are not of the same opinion as those who do, and when the election comes they make this manifest. Roosevelt is of course entitled to all the delegates he secured by the primary system, but where other systems were used and he did not obtain the delegates we are not justified in assuming that the wishes of the people were defeated. A primary has legal weight even if participated in by a mere handful, but for moral weight it requires a general participation.

There was a time in the history of this country when it cost but little to perpetuate one's name through the years. John Harvard left 260 books and $2,000 to found Harvard College. Elihu Yale parted with but a little more than $1,000 to make his name known to posterity, and others gave similarly small sums to start schools which have now become great universities bearing their names. The days for such opportunities have long since passed and now it takes millions, where once hundreds were enough, to make a name famous through the ages.

The condition of things in Chicago has reached such a state that it would seem to be the part of political wisdom, as well as of self-respect, for Colonel Roosevelt to thank the delegates who have so loyally supported him in his right for the nomination and to retire from the contest. To keep up the fight longer will be even more unseemly than his course during the past few days.

The council of Parsons, W. Va., some time ago passed an ordinance making it a misdemeanor to have, sell or give away cigarettes in that city. Three men who were successively elected mayor declined to serve, when they realized that they must enforce the ordinance against cigarettes. Now Rev. T. K. Hickell has been elected, accepting the office with the announcement that he will rigidly enforce the law.

The Brown University base ball team has ended a very successful season, with 19 victories an dfive defeats. Brown was defeated by Princeton by one run and a return game was prevented by rain. The question of the college championship lies between those two, but as there was no regular schedule and they did not play against the same other team, the matter is a difficult one to settle.

The Democratic national committee has decided that it will not recognize Bryan's protest, and will name Judge Alton B. Barker for temprary chairman of the convention at Baltimore. Bryan may oppose him at the meeting, but this is not likely to be very effectual.

Colonel George W. Gecthals, chief engineer of the Panama Canal, is the champion honorary degree man of the year. He has already received recognition from Columbia, Yale and Harvard, and the college Commencements have not all taken place.

The Democrats will take the stage immediately following the Republican show at Chicago, so that the country will have a continuous performance of political vaudeville for some time yet.

Mayor Gaynor of New York is looming up as a Presidential candidate. With the solid vote of that state back of him, he is likely to become a prominent factor in the Democratic convention.

Even Colonel Roosevelt's followers are finding that he is not the sort of man they care to follow in all his whims and ravings.

Roosevelt may bolt, but there are many of his admirers who will not go with him. A one-man party is not usually successful.

President Taft and his friends are standing pat. They are satisfied with the way things are going at Chicago.

To bolt or not to bolt, that is the question.

WHAT OTHERS ARE DOING AGAINST THE FLY.

The work of Spokane, to which a new health officer, John B. Anderson, M. D., has been appointed within the past year has a look of activity in the proper direction. "During the summer we fought the house fly," writes Dr. Anderson, "and more important, the hatching ground. Many a manure pile was removed, many a festering pile of rubbish." There were 50 old sheds, barns and filthy houses torn down, removing so many breeding-places of enemies to health. Attention was paid to refreshment stands and eating shops. "Especially did we watch the circuses and the inter-state fair, which bring great numbers together." The circuses were forced to clean up, while the fair hauled its refuse to the city crematory, which was done for the first time. Conditions in bakeries and food-producing establishments were bettered, livery stables have been made more cleanly, concrete has been substituted for wood in cellar floors where business is transacted and unsanitary wells have been condemned and filled.

The health authorities of Springfield, Mass., make an excellent statement of general conditions when in discussing nuisances in the report for last year, the health officer notes: "It is important that accumulations of garbage, manure, dumping material and rubbish of all kinds should be prevented, and every individual can do much in this direction by the daily burning of refuse in stoves and furnaces when possible." He notes the true attitude of the fly, which, breeding in refuse, may become a disease disseminator if it comes into contact with infectious material. He says further: "The number of flies present in a given locality is fair evidence of the sanitary conditions of the locality, and the fly nuisance can be abated only by a general cleaning up of all varieties of dirt and rubbish before the onset of the fly season. To what extent disease is transmitted by dirt is not by any means settled, but it may fairly be placed in the nuisance list. The prevention of dirt goes beyond the oiling or sprinkling of the streets and is a difficult problem to solve owing to the many sources of production."

Sunday, June 23, will be Arcanum day, which is observed wherever there is a Council of the Royal Arcanum as a memorial to the dead of the organization. It is customary on the fourth Sunday in June each year to decorate the graves of deceased members and hold services in their memory. Coronet Council will follow the former custom next Sunday, but has been obliged to postpone its memorial service until a later date.

There are buried in the various cemeteries of Newport and vicinity 83 members of the local Council, while other deceased members have been buried in widely scattered sections of the United States and one or two in foreign lands. Birch, who died September 22, 1911, in the naval hospital at Las Animas, Col., and whose body was brought here for burial.

CRADLE OF THE NEW YORK YACHT CLUB.

[W. P. Dodge, in Strand.]

Shortly after the Revolution Colonel Stevens purchased Hoboken, which was then an island of swamps and rocky hills, and established the family on Castle Point, a beautiful promontory overlooking the Hudson and New York City. John C. Stevens, the father of American yachting, was born there in 1785. There were no ferries in those days, and the Stevens boys of necessity became expert boatmen. At 14 John C. owned a sail-boat of 20 feet length, named "Diver." As the years passed by he had the schooner "Gimcrack" built for him by William Capes, in Hoboken. This boat is one of the most historic craft of American yachting, since she was the cradle of the New York Yacht Club, the organization being accomplished in her cabin July 30, 1844, the year in which so many of the world's greatest achievements occurred. On that day John C. Stevens called a meeting of yachtsmen which assembled on board the "Gimcrack," anchored off the Battery, New York city, and here the constitution of the New York Yacht Club was drawn up.

HEARING IN FERADA CASE.

Damage Suit For Collision With Bicycle by Water Works Automobile.

Witnesses Testify as to Incident and Jurors View Spot on Farewell Street.

The superior court, Judge Brown presiding, resumed business at 9:52 this morning.

Mr. Levy asked assignment for a hearing of Francis vs. Glover. He suggested next motion day, or some day in Providence. Judge Brown said he could not hear it before July, in Providence. Judge Franklin objected to going to Providence. Judge Brown reminded counsel that the court has now but five justices to do the work which six have always been able to do. He suggested that counsel consult Presiding Justice Tanner by telephone. He thought the case would be too long to be heard on motion day. Perhaps the deposition of Mr. Levy's client might be taken. Mr. Levy withdrew, apparently bound for the telephone.

After the court had charged the jury in the bond cases Jhn Ferada vs. Newport Water Works was ready. The court said it was useless to start it, if it could not be finished today. Counsel insisted that it was a short case. "Want to take a view?" asked the court. "It is only a block from here," said counsel. Counsel agreed to waive the view. One was ready to waive the jury. The court said: "Call the jury." Then counsel desired 15 minutes for a view. "Very well," said the court; "but the case must be finished at the hour for adjournment."

The following jurors were called: George C. Kauil, Jr., Newport; Thomas Gibbs, Little Compton; Harry E. Peckham, Middletown; Henry H. Smith, Newport; Lewis E. Peckham, Jamestown; Edmund Chase, Portsmouth; Henry Whitehead, Tiverton; William H. Weaver, James C. Durfee, Newport; William Almy, Portsmouth; Lewis F. Meredith, Jamestown; Alexander T. McDonald, Newport.

Judge Burke explained the case. There were no challenges and Mr. Peckham was appointed foreman. Mr. S. H. Davis of Westerly appeared for defendant.

The case is for damages for collision with plaintiff's bicycle by the Water Works automobile, December 31st last year. He was laid up five weeks, besides other losses.

The jury went for a view, returning in about 15 minutes, perhaps less.

Plaintiff was first witness. He lives in Middletown. It was 8:30. His brother was with him, riding a bicycle. They were going north on Farewell street. He saw an automobile coming, tried to get out of the way, was struck. Was on the right side of the street. The automobile was on the left side of the street, going so fast it couldn't go much faster. He was struck on the right side and knee. After it struck him, he thinks it pushed him. He lost his head. Recovered at his house. He looked at the corner. The automobile came so fast he couldn't avoid it. It blew the horn when it was on top of him. It took him home.

The bicycle was damaged. Had been riding five years; had a coaster brake. His suit of clothes was spoiled—his $18 Sunday suit. He was then working at "Black Point," Norman's farm, earning $1.75 a day. He lost about five weeks' work from the accident. His Sunday hat ($5) was ruined. Had Dr. Conway; went to him five or six times. The knee pains him at irregular intervals, sometimes all day. The last time was a year ago. No other vehicle or car was near. It was admitted that the Water Works was responsible for the automobile at the time.

In cross-examination plaintiff said he was using his brake. Had no shell on his bicycle.

Anton Ferada testified. He was six feet ahead of plaintiff. Rang his bell at the corner. He escaped the automobile, which was going very fast. Looked back and saw the automobile make plaintiff slide 10 or 11 feet. John was between its front and back wheels. He couldn't stand for two or three minutes. Then the man took him home. The automobile was on the left side of the street. Heard no horn. Witness started fast when he saw the automobile; "it couldn't catch me."

Plaintiff was re-called to tell what the chauffeur said some weeks later. This was ruled out.

Dr. Francis J. Conway of Portsmouth testified. He was called to plaintiff's home on Wapping road December 31st, 1911. Plaintiff was bruised all over his body and one knee was apparently wrenched, the knee pan struck, and he had water on the knee. Treated him about three weeks. In about four weeks he could work. Witness's bill was $18.

Thomas R. Curtis of Newport took the stand. His place of business is at the corner in question. He saw the result of the collision, being 75 or 80 feet from it. The automobile passed him just before the accident, on the left side of the street, going 20 miles an hour. Was talking and heard a scream. The automobile was between the track and the west crossing, nearer the left side of Marlborough street. The man was between the front and back wheels. The front axle had passed over him. The bicycle was under the machine with the man. Heard no horn blown. If the chauffeur was on the left side of Marlborough street he could not see what was coming on Farewell street until it reached Marlborough street. Witness would not think the automobile could be stopped in its length if going at the rate of 20 miles.

Captain J. P. Cotton testified that, going at 20 miles an hour, an automobile would go 30 feet in 24-5 seconds—about 20 feet a second.

Mrs. Rebecca Kravetz, of 32 Marlborough street, testified. She was talking to Mr. Curtis at the time of the accident. Could give no distances. Saw the Water Works automobile going to the Water Works. It almost took her along; the wind switched her dress. She saw the man go under it, and screamed. He was pulled out and they set him on a stone and soon they took him home. When it struck him it was on the left side of the road. No horn was blown. After the man was down he was dragged across Marlborough street by the automobile. It did not blow the horn. Speed was not slowed before it reached the east sidewalk. Here plaintiff rested.

Joseph Scheible the boy who was driving the automobile, took the stand. He said he was going 14 miles and also slowed up at that crossing. It had a half bumper. He had also a horn. He was going three or four miles an hour at the crossing. The road had been oiled and his machine skidded. He was all the time on the left hand side of the street. When he saw the bicycles he put on his brakes; he was half across the street when he first saw them. The first man was going or ten feet ahead. He was going at a great rate; he just skinned by. They were both overs going as fast as they could. He had on his high speed gear; used his reverse and brake together, which locked his wheels instantly.

In cross-examination witness said he was 18 years and one month old at the time of the accident. He had his first license three years ago. Has run into people only twice. Has not been taken to the police station and cautioned for fast driving. Had been working for the company five days when this accident occurred. Never had that sort of machine before. That car can't travel 20 miles an hour—figures this by the gear and horse power. He tried to figure, and then said he didn't know enough about mechanics to figure it out. He said he knew "from a matter of fact" that that car couldn't travel 20 miles an hour. He then said that he did not know; this was what he had been told. There was no emergency brake on the car. His service brake worked. The wheels were completely locked. Knew this because he could see that he skidded.

He met the Ferada's; didn't tell plaintiff he was lucky to escape with his life because the brake was not working. He finally admitted he was running the full speed of the car, 20 feet from the crossing. Then he tried to slow up. Couldn't see plaintiff sooner because witness was avoiding the first man. Was going three or four miles an hour when he struck plaintiff; didn't drag him more than from 10 to 12 inches. The car may have hit sideways a fraction of an inch.

Michael Barry, also Walsh, testified. He was on the car, beside the last witness. They slowed up at the crossing. They were not going at high speed on Marlborough street. The bicycles were going as fast or faster. Did not see plaintiff until looking away from the other bicyclist. Plaintiff was between the rails when witness first saw him. Helped take him from under the axle. The horn sounded when the machine was stopped. The bicycles were perhaps 20 feet apart. The man was not unconscious; he told witness he was all right. They took him home; couldn't say how far it was—five or 15 miles. Didn't see the man until they were right on him. They didn't do anything more than ordinary speed that day. Has never driven an automobile, and drove a horse but little.

At 1:07 a recess to 2:30 was taken.

MANY SUICIDES IN JAPAN.

[Pall Mall Gazette.]

The Japanese are now busily debating the ethics of suicide. The case out of which the controversy has arisen is that of the station master at Moji, who, because of a mishap to the Imperial train, which made it necessary for the emperor to adjourn for half an hour to a waiting room, showed his repentance by throwing himself under the wheels of the express. The station master's devotion having evoked a wave of popular admiration, which took shape in a proposal to erect a monument to his memory, the nation has been rebuked by the president of the Kyushu University for thus glorifying an act of self-destruction; and the latter, finding himself out of tune with public opinion, has resigned his position.

It is a singular thing that among a people so cheerful as the Japanese suicide should be so common. Ten thousand destroy themselves every year in Japan, and the figures cannot be said to be diminishing. But hara-kiri, as such, is out of date. The modern victims of the suicidal mania, when they do not throw themselves in front of a train, jump into the crater of an active volcano. Asama in central Japan, and Aso-san in Kyushu, have both acquired a sinister reputation in this respect.

It is, however, a disquieting sign of the times to find the student class resorting so largely to suicide—especially of the spectacular sort, and this, no doubt, is Dr. Yamakawa's motive in protesting against the exaltation of an act which the Christian world regards as a grievous sin.

JAMESTOWN.

Death of Mrs. Annie Pearson Gill—a Charming Wedding at Conanicut Park.

Mrs. Annie Pearson Gill, wife of William H. Gill, of this town, died Wednesday evening at the Newport Hospital, where she had been in a critical condition for nearly five months.

Mrs. Gill had been in poor health for a long period, but last January her condition became serious that it was deemed best to remove her to the hospital for special treatment. Her condition did not improve and it became necessary to operate for a pressure on the brain. The operation was not successful, as a tumor which could not be removed without fatal results was found. Both before and since the operation she had been a great sufferer.

Only an unusually strong constitution prolonged life, the end coming after several days of unconsciousness.

Mrs. Gill was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pearson of this town, both of whom survive. She also has beside her husband, a sister, Miss Josephine Pearson, and two children, Esther and William, Jr.

Her death, although expected, leaves a void not only among her family and friends, but among all who knew her.

One of the most charming weddings that ever occurred on Conanicut took place Thursday at the studio of Mr. John A. S. Monks at Conanicut Park, when his daughter, Helen M. Monks, was married to Bernice B. Hutchinson of Chicago, Ill. Mr. Donald John Hutchinson acted as best man, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Charles H. Burrows, under one of the apple trees near the studio.

PREPARING TO OPEN THE PLAYGROUNDS.

The city playgrounds will open next Wednesday for the summer, and there are already signs of activity at the several school grounds, where the new apparatus procured for this season is being installed by Supervisor Louis R. Chase. It is noticed this year that the sandboxes are larger and at the Mary Street ground a baby swing and the giant stride have been added to the equipment. The giant stride is also installed at Lenthal, while at Potter there is a new slide, for the smaller children.

Mr. Chase will have general supervision of the playgrounds as usual this summer and his assistants, who will be distributed at the different schools, will be Misses Mary Flynn, Mary Leddy, Mildred Sampson, the Misses Manchester, Miss Dixie Donovan and Miss Nissen, Stanley Ward, Charles Underwood, Manuel Jamail and Morton Lee.

ACCIDENT INSURANCE IN GERMANY.

Apropos of the information given out at the National Congress of Women in Germany, that of the 10,000,000,000 persons independently employed agricultural pursuits in Germany one half are women, a story told by Dr. Ferdinand Friedensburg, late of the imperial insurance commission in Germany, throws some light upon the German peasant woman's ability, after centuries of training, to take herself and her children as mere beasts of burden. One of the kinds of industrial insurance in Germany is accident insurance, and trades and professions are grouped together to insure equity in the distribution of risk and indemnification. In agricultural industries, in particular, according to Dr. Friedensburg, there is a great deal of casuistry, and the most remarkable assertions are made by the injured in the effort to bring their injuries under the designated trade.

By way of illustration, he mentions a coachman who was injured in a journey to church, and who made the point that he was taking part in a procession that was on its way to church to pray for rain, so that the journey had been undertaken in the interests of agriculture. Then he cites the case of a peasant woman who, while undressing her six-year-old daughter one evening, injured her finger, which, in consequence of some accessory pollution was poisoned, and had to be amputated. The mother contended that the child had been employed in agriculture, because she minded geese, and that undressing her was to be regarded as the unharnessing of a beast of burden, and charged to the account of agriculture. To the American mind the revelation in the case is not wholly confined to its "casuistry."

A BOX AND A STILL.

Smoking Lamp at 17 Brewer Street and Damp Chimney at Dr. Estes' House Causes Alarms.

Frightened by a smoking lamp when she returned home Thursday night, Mrs. Frank Harrington of 17 Brewer street attempted to throw it out of the window. The lamp hit the wall and fell upon the floor, starting the real fire which she had feared.

At 10:10 o'clock a man rushed into the Newport Engineering works garage and said there was a house on fire up the street. He was told how to pull box 411, just outside, which he did. Other men went into the house and put out the little fire which had started, so that when the department arrived there was nothing for it to do and the recall was soon sent in.

When the alarm began to sound the first circus wagon was just coming down Touro street. The driver showed his training, for he promptly directed his team to Washington square, where there was plenty of room all around him, and waited. Truck 1 came up Long wharf and turned down Thames street, but still he waited until he was advised that no more apparatus was coming that way. His prompt action in a strange place caused favorable remark.

Truck 1 made a spectacular run down the street, horseshoes and wheel tires striking fire as the apparatus sped over the granite paving. Even the sailrs who flocked into the street to run to the fire halted to see "the flying machine" go by.

This morning at 7:15 a damp chimney caused smoke to fill the house of Dr. Estes on Touro street when a fire was started in the range and a still was sent in for the firemen to come and see what was the matter.

SWORDFISH AND MACKEREL.

Thursday 18 swordfish were landed at Block Island and brought over on the New Shoreham; today 30 have been landed there already, 16 by the On Time, 7 by the Alice, 5 by the Marguerite and 2 by the Sarah. They were all big fish. There are also some mackerel. The Effie M. Prior was in with 6,600 fish, 81 barrels; the Woodan had 1,000, the Alice 150, and the Wood and Muck 250. The W. S. Wells of Macomber & Nickerson's fleet had three barrels of weakfish from Sakonnet point. C. B. Anderson reports some excellent turn of spring fishing, having a catch of alewives and one roe shad in his Coddington Cove trap today. The menhaden are running well in the bay.

TEST OF FORT GREBLE MORTARS

The inspector of ordnance today visited Fort Greble, where a test was made of the mortar battery, the firing being done about noon. The carriages have been re-built on a new plan, which gives a shorter range, the guns now being fired with an elevation of about 70 degrees. This gives them a much wider range of action than with the original carriages, which allowed only about 45 degrees. Work on those carriages was pushed because the militia will use them during the summer camp. The work on the old Adams mortars will be resumed now that the Fort Greble battery is finished.

Very often you go into a store to look at some article or articles and the salesman talks and talks and talks. When you get home you say to yourself, "That fellow talked a lot but to come to think of it he didn't say much."

Have you heard the saying, "Actions speak louder than words?" That just fits Becker Brothers Pianos. They speak for themselves.

JUDGE PARKER NAMED,

For Temporary Chairman of Baltimore Convention, Despite Bryan.

BALTIMORE, June 20.—In spite of the protest of William J. Bryan, whose friends submitted the names of four other candidates for the honor, former Judge Alton B. Parker was selected today by the committee of arrangements for the Democratic national) convention as temporary chairman. The choice is not final, and must be passed upon by the full national committee at a meeting which will be held next Monday.

It was said tonight that a telegram was dispatched to Chicago to Mr. Bryan, urging that he come to Baltimore at once. Several national committeemen said after today's meeting that they expected a fight by Mr. Bryan's friends would be made on the floor of the convention against Judge Parker's selection. A telegram received from Chicago today said that Mr. Bryan had refused to comment upon the choice of Judge Parker for the honor.

Eight of the 10 votes in the committee of arrangements went to the New York jurist, while Representative Henry of Texas received three votes, Senator-elect Ollie James of Kentucky three votes, Senator Kern of Indiana one and Senator O'Gorman of New York one. As the campaign managers of those seeking the Presidential nomination were playing for position with respect to the nomination the vote in opposition to Judge Parker was in consequence split up.

With Judge Parker, the committee chose Urey Woodson of Kentucky as temporary secretary, and John I. Martin of Missouri as temporary sergeant-at-arms.

SOUTHERN REPRESENTATION.

Complaint Made That Bulk of the Taft Support Came From There.

Talk of Money in Connection With National Conventions—Lawyers on Committee.

[Chicago Correspondence of the News.]

Chicago, June 20.—One complaint which many men presented to their fellow Republicans during the convention canvass was that the bulk of the support of Mr. Taft came from the Southern states which could not deliver a single electoral vote to the Republican ticket. That same story has been told over and over at different conventions. We heard it in 1892 when Southern votes nominated Mr. Harrison, and again in 1896 when Southern votes made Mr. McKinley the nominee. Little was heard of it in 1900 and 1904 because Mr. McKinley, in the first year named and Mr. Roosevelt in the second, were nominated without dissenting votes. But it was heard loud and long in 1908 when the Southern delegates prevented any combination being made by the "allies" to prevent the nomination of Mr. Taft. This year there has been as much said about it as ever.

But Southern representation cannot be reduced. There is always the fear of the effect upon the negro voters in Northern states. More especially is that fear a controlling factor in close years. Southern representation might have been safely reduced in any of the last three Presidential campaigns, but the nominees of those conventions did not like to take the risk. It was nearer of accomplishment four years ago than ever before, but it is quite possible that it will be quite a long time before it is again brought forward with any hope of success.

There may have been a time when there was not talk of money in connection with national conventions and its lavish expenditure among certain Southern delegates. How that kind of talk can be avoided has often been discussed by men who are weary of it and the fact that there is a reason for it. Only when there are sharp contests does this money talk arise. Back in 1888 it was notorious. There was a renewal of it in 1892, but as no real contest was precipitated until this year there was less talk about money at the intervening conventions, although it was generally known that certain delegates, at least, had their expenses to the convention paid. The Republicans seem to be unable to prevent the condition which arises every four years and other times they forget it.

It did not take long to discover that the national committee was composed of lawyers. As soon as a legal question was injected into the proceedings there was as much desire to argue and discuss it as there is when the Senate of the United States gets a constitutional bone upon which its lawyers can gnaw. Such proceedings were just as unsatisfactory to Senator Penrose and to Senator Crane in the committee as in the Senate. Neither of them like long winded talks.

A youthful newspaper man asked Colonel Lyon of Texas if there was any possibility of the Texas delegation supporting Senator Bailey for President. "The Democratic delegation to Baltimore," replied Lyon "looks like a lot of joyous honorary and regular pall bearers at Bailey's funeral." From which it may be inferred that Texas will not support Senator Bailey.

It was a bold thing for any set of men to come to a Republican national convention and [illegible] nance on the ground that they are trying to build up a white man's party in the South. There is scarcely anything that seems to get quite so much sympathy before a Republican national committee or a Republican committee on credentials as a plea of that kind. The rights of the colored man is still a sacred principle with most Republicans who make up the membership of national conventions.

Both parties long ago allowed territories and districts without a vote in the electoral college to have representation on the national committees. They also have representation on the committees of the convention and in all capacities become a potent force. It may be remembered that the vote of a delegate from Hawaii on the committee on resolutions put a free silver declaration in the Democratic platform of 1900. During the consideration of contests before the Republican national committee the vote of Hawaii was as potent as New York, Arizona as that of California and Porto Rico and the Philippines as great as those of Minnesota and Wisconsin. And these votes of small political divisions offset the votes of the large states many times during the proceedings of the committee and convention.

A SCHOOL OF GREEN TURTLES.

Captain Dunbar of steamship Buckminster, which arrived in New York from Cuban ports, said that when 70 miles south of the Winter Quarter Shoals lightship, off the Virginia coast, she ran through a school of more than 150 green turtles, some of which were more than five feet long. It is unusual for turtles to travel so far north. Captain Dunbar thinks the Gulf Stream is working in northward at this point and that the turtles were in this current.

ARMY PLACES WITHHELD.

Taft's Veto of Appropriation Bill Will Prevent Promotion of a Number of Officers.

[Washington despatch to New York Tribune.]

One of the effects arising from the President's veto of the army appropriation bill will be withholding from the army some 25 places which were added by that legislation. When the House and Senate agreed to reduce the number of officers of the General Staff, it was provided that there should remain 25 officers, in addition to the two general officers, and these 25 were to be detailed from the line of the army—three from the grade of colonel, four from that of lieutenant-colonel, eight from that of major and 10 from that of captain and first lieutenant. Had the legislation been approved there would have resulted the promotion of three lieutenant colonels, seven majors, 15 captains and 25 vacancies in the grade of second lieutenant to be filled, ultimately, in the usual way by candidates from civil life, from the enlisted force and by graduates of the Military Academy.

In any event, there will probably be enough vacancies after the appointment of the West Pointers and the enlisted men to have another examination later this year of candidates from civil life. There are now 24 vacancies in the corps of engineers, 77 in the cavalry, 20 in the field artillery, 40 in the coast artillery and 134 in the infantry.

ECZEMA FROM TEETHING

"When my little girl was about eight months old, she was taken with a very irritating breaking out, which came on her face, neck and back. When she first came down with it, it came in little watery-like festers under her ears, and on her chin, then after a few days it would dry down in scaly, white scabs. In the daytime she was quite worrysome and would dig and scratch her face nearly all the time.

"I consulted our physician and found she was suffering from eczema, which he said came from her teething. I used the ointment he gave me and without any relief at all. Then I wrote for a book on Cuticura, and purchased some Cuticura Soap and Ointment at the drugstore. I did as I found directions in the Cuticura Booklet, and when she was one year old, she was entirely cured. Now she is three years and four months, and she has never been troubled with eczema since she was cured by the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment." (Signed) Mrs. Freeman Craver, 311 Lewis St., Syracuse, N. Y., May 3, 1911. Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Send to "Cuticura," Dept. KK, Boston, for a liberal sample of each, post-free, with 32-p. book on the skin.

BOTH RACES WON BY HARVARD CREWS

Yale Defeated in Freshmen and 'Varsity Events.

Hard Fought Contest Followed by an Easy Victory on the Thames.

NEW LONDON, June 21.—A hard fought victory, followed by an easy win, was scored by Harvard in the preliminary contests of today's annual regatta with Yale, that will reach its culmination in the 'Varsity race this afternoon. The Harvard Freshmen defeated the Yale Freshmen by a scant length, or a margin, which the timer placed at 2½ seconds. The official time was Harvard 10:52, Yale 10:54 1-2.

The Crimson four-oared 'Varsity crew rowed away from their opponents in the Yale shell and had 10 lengths to spare at the finish. The official time in this race was Harvard 11:24, Yale 11:55. Except at the very start the Harvard shell was always ahead of Yale in both races.

At the beginning of the Freshmen race underneath the drawbridge, Yale had a little the better of the contest for the first few strokes. The sturdy Harvard youngsters then buckled down to their work and from that time until the finish was reached they had good views of the brown backs of their opponents. Just before the flag fell, Yale spurted and made up almost a length in the last few strokes.

The times by half miles were: Half—Harvard 2:35; Yale 2:38. Mile—Harvard 5:17, Yale 5:21. Mile-and-a-half—Harvard 7:14, Yale 7:17. Two miles—Harvard 10.52; Yale 10:54 1-2.

The four-oared crews were waiting at the navy yard and 20 minutes after the finish of the Freshmen's contest the second race was on. Here Yale caught the water ahead of Harvard, only to be passed before six strokes had been rowed. The Crimson lead increased constantly and by the time the mile flag was reached it was only a question of how decisive would be the victory.

The times for the four-oared race were: Half mile—Harvard 2:32 1-2; Yale 2:35. Mile—Harvard 5:24. Yale 5:34. Mile-and-a-half—Harvard 8:15; Yale 8:32. Two miles—Harvard 11:24, Yale 11:55.

The two races were rowed under ideal conditions of both wind and water.

THE COST OF WASTE.

Gobbling of the Greedy and Selfishness of the Wealthy Responsible For Much Distress.

[New York Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin.]

It costs more to live because the mass of the people live better and think they really must have many things in order to be comfortable which they could do without, if they had to, without feeling privation.

The improved standard of living is a desirable thing and pinching economy is not commendable when it is not necessary, though always maintaining a margin of earning above spending is always praiseworthy as well as prudent. But there is a great deal of extravagance and luxury which is wickedly wasteful. It uses up the materials, the substance that goes to the sustenance and comfort of people, and tends to increase inequality in the distribution of the fruits of labor. If half of that which is squandered in lavish and unwholesome living were left in the general supply instead of being immediately consumed by the self-indulgent few it would make a substantial difference in the price of things. Not only is much more devoured or used up than is wholesome for mankind, but a vast deal is thrown away in sheer waste. The expensive hotels and restaurants and the lordly mansions where banquets are given use up an immense share of the choicest products and materials of the depletion of the stock upon which those of modest means or small income must depend.

There is a fallacious idea of economic advantage in luxury and extravagance because it makes work and gives employment to many. There is no occasion to decry that which gratifies taste and contributes to refinement or elegance of living, but there is much that is sheer superfluity, which turns much material and labor to no use but the gratification of gross appetite or vulgar display. The labor employed in pandering to this kind of demand is worse that thrown away and if bestowed upon other lines of production would increase the supply and lower the cost of that which ministers to comfort. The greediness and selfishness of those who have more than enough, who do not mind what things cost or how much they pay for, are depriving a multitude of others of what they are better entitled to, because their extravagance takes all the best, depletes the stock and makes the inferior high priced.

The cost of high living, the lavish using up of the products of labor by those who can afford it is one of the causes of the high cost of living for those of small means. Another incident of the improved standard of living is that too little attention is given to making a little go far. Our people do not economize in the true sense of the word by making the most of what they have. The common people of France have a reputation for thrift and economy, acquired by a careful and prudent habit of wasting nothing and applying skill to making the best of their material. This is not meanness or penuriousness, unless carried to an extreme which the means of the person does not justify, it is getting comfort and ease out of a little by making much of it. Most people who have no superfluous income get much less out of what they have than they might by giving thought and taking pains. There is more to divide than ever before and the individual shares are greater, because distributed with more inequality. Living costs more because people insist upon living better, which is not to be deprecated within the limits of moderation. It is the excess, the waste, the gobbling of the greedy or the heedless, and the little thought of those who have for those who have not, that is responsible for much privation and misery.

HADLEY'S MOTION LAID ON TABLE.

none of it had been given his sanction, either directly or indirectly.

Taking up a review of the situation as it appeared to him before today's session of the convention was called to order, Mr. McKinley declared that the Roosevelt forces were demoralized and disorganized to an extent which would preclude any further united action in or out of the convention. The Taft leaders went into conference early today for the purpose of advancing plans for both day and night sessions of the convention, with a view to winding up the convention certainly by Saturday night.

"There is absolutely no reason," said one of these leaders, "why these delegates should be forced to remain in Chicago over Sunday. Many of them who come from a long distance, have important business matters to attend to next week that demand their presence at home. Already they have given a solid week of their time to this convention, counting from the day they left their homes, and I see no reason for longer delaying the regular business of the convention. I believe the Roosevelt 'cyclone' has blown itself out and passed on."

However, as the hour for formal resumption of the convention session drew near there was increased discussion of just what action would be taken by the Roosevelt forces during the day. Repeated efforts were made to get from Colonel Roosevelt the details of his further plans, but without immediate avail.

Many were inclined to think that the plan of "passive resistance" mapped out by the Roosevelt managers would be discarded before it had been placed in fair working order. According to this plan the Roosevelt delegates were not to vote on motions connected with the work and organization of the convention, but were to place Roosevelt's name in nomination. Also, if a candidate is nominated with the votes of the alleged fraudulent delegates, it was announced that the Roosevelt forces would call a convention in Chicago for the first week in August to which all progressives will be invited and at which it is expected Roosevelt will be nominated for the Presidency. According to one of the progressive newspapers, Woodrow Wilson will be selected as Colonel Roosevelt's running mate.

With the approach of the time for nominations, United States Senator Kenyon and Congressman Prouty of Iowa were active in behalf of the candidacy of Senator Cummins. Both sides expected important developments today that might decide the chances of the Iowa Senator's success.

There were strong indications in the Taft camp also, that the leaders had gotten together on their program and the session of the convention today might bring forth a clean-cut outline of what finally these leaders intended to do. Final plans were discussed at a number of breakfast councils, during which communications were received from nearly all state leaders as to late developments last night.

TO IMPROVE NIAGARA FALLS.

Highest Rubble-Stone Wall in the World to Relieve Unsightliness Around Cataract.

What is believed to be the highest rubble-stone wall in the world is nearing completion at Niagara Falls and is expected to be finished by the first of September. It is 400 feet long and rises a sheer 200 feet against the almost pependicular bank of the gorge through which the river rushes half a mile below the cataract.

The wall is under construction by one of the electric power companies on the American side, and was suggested by the scenic committee appointed by the President of the United States to co-operate with existing agencies to make the surroundings of the Falls worthy of the cataract itself. For many years both banks of the river were notoriously unsightly, but thanks to the recently-developed Queen Victoria Niagara Falls Park on the Canadian side, the New York state reservation on the American side, and the assistance of the power companies owning property along the water front the environment of the cataract will soon be above criticism.

The wall in question is made out of huge pieces of stone of the same sort as that which goes to form the cliff itself, and originally blown out of it. The wall is 14 feet thick at the base, entirely concealing the pipes through which water rushes to the turbines below. In order to carry out the project for improving the gorge, the power company bought out five small and especially unsightly factories, replacing their variegated and unlovely architecture by its uniform and impressive front. It is expected that the wall will eventually stretch all the way from the power plant to the state reservation, thus overcoming the principal remaining defect in the surroundings of Niagara Falls.

Effort toward improving the environment of the stupendous cataract is the final step in the campaign to preserve the spectacle in perpetuity as one of the great natural wonders of the continent. Protection of the cataract itself has already been secured through the Canadian-American waterways treaty, which limits the water which may be diverted for power purposes to 20,000 cubic feet per second on the American side, and 36,000 cubic feet per second on the Canadian side.

This treaty cannot become fully operative in the United States until the expiration of the Burton law next spring. The allowance of 20,000 cubic feet per second on the American side is only 4,400 cubic feet more than the amount now actually in use. According to General Bixby, chief of engineers United States army, the slight additional diversion allowed cannot lower the American Falls more than an eighth of an inch, which means that its present splendor is permanently assured.

JUDGE PARKER NAMED,

For Temporary Chairman of Baltimore Convention, Despite Bryan.

BALTIMORE, June 20.—In spite of the protest of William J. Bryan, whose friends submitted the names of four other candidates for the honor, former Judge Alton B. Parker was selected today by the committee of arrangements for the Democratic national convention as temporary chairman. The choice is not final, and must be passed upon by the full national committee at a meeting which will be held next Monday.

It was said tonight that a telegram was dispatched to Chicago to Mr. Bryan, urging that he come to Baltimore at once. Several national committeemen said after today's meeting that they expected a fight by Mr. Bryan's friends would be made on the floor of the convention against Judge Parker's selection. A telegram received from Chicago today said that Mr. Bryan had refused to comment upon the choice of Judge Parker for the honor.

Eight of the 16 votes in the committee of arrangements went to the New York jurist, while Representative Henry of Texas received three votes, Senator-elect Ollie James of Kentucky three votes, Senator Kern of Indiana one and Senator O'Gorman of New York one. As the campaign managers of those seeking the Presidential nomination were playing for position with respect to the nomination the vote in opposition to Judge Parker was in consequence split up.

With Judge Parker, the committee chose Urey Woodson of Kentucky as temporary secretary, and John I. Martin of Missouri as temporary sergeant-at-arms.

SOUTHERN REPRESENTATION.

Complaint Made That Bulk of the Taft Support Came From There.

Talk of Money in Connection With National Conventions—Lawyers on Committee.

(Chicago Correspondence of the News.)

Chicago, June 20.—One complaint which many men presented to their fellow Republicans during the convention canvass was that the bulk of the support of Mr. Taft came from the Southern states which could not deliver a single electoral vote to the Republican ticket. That same story has been told over and over at different conventions. We heard it in 1892 when Southern votes nominated Mr. Harrison, and again in 1896 when Southern votes made Mr. McKinley the nominee. Little was heard of it in 1900 and 1904 because Mr. McKinley, in the first year named and Mr. Roosevelt in the second, were nominated without dissenting votes. But it was heard loud and long in 1905 when the Southern delegates prevented any combination being made by the "allies" to prevent the nomination of Mr. Taft. This year there has been as much said about it as ever.

But Southern representation cannot be reduced. There is always the fear of the effect upon the negro voters in Northern states. More especially is that fear a controlling factor in close years. Southern representation might have been safely reduced in any of the last three Presidential campaigns, but the nominees of those conventions did not like to take the risk. It was nearer of accomplishment four years ago than ever before, but it is quite possible that it will be quite a long time before it is again brought forward with any hope of success.

There may have been a time when there was not talk of money in connection with national conventions and its lavish expenditure among certain Southern delegates. How that kind of talk can be avoided has often been discussed by men who are weary of it and the fact that there is a reason for it. Only when there are sharp contests does this money talk arise. Back in 1888 it was notorious. There was a renewal of it in 1892, but as no real contest was precipitated until this year there was less talk about money at the intervening conventions, although it was generally known that certain delegates, at least, had their expenses to the convention paid. The Republicans seem to be unable to prevent the condition which arises every four years and other times they forget it.

It did not take long to discover that the national committee was composed of lawyers. As soon as a legal question was injected into the proceedings there was as much desire to argue and discuss it as there is when the Senate of the United States gets a constitutional bone upon which its lawyers can gnaw. Such proceedings were just as unsatisfactory to Senator Penrose and to Senator Crane in the committee as in the Senate. Neither of them like long winded talks.

A youthful newspaper man asked Colonel Lyon of Texas if there was any possibility of the Texas delegation supporting Senator Bailey for President. "The Democratic delegation to Baltimore," replied Lyon "looks like a lot of joyous honorary and regular pall bearers at Bailey's funeral." From which it may be inferred that Texas will not support Senator Bailey.

It was a bold thing for any set of men to come to a Republican national convention and [illegible] tance on the ground that they are trying to build up a white man's party in the South. There is scarcely anything that seems to get quite so much sympathy before a Republican national committee or a Republican committee on credentials as a plea of that kind. The rights of the colored man is still a sacred principle with most Republicans who make up the membership of national conventions.

Both parties long ago allowed territories and districts without a vote in the electoral college to have representation on the national committees. They also have representation on the committees of the convention and in all capacities become a potent force. It may be remembered that the vote of a delegate from Hawaii on the committee on resolutions put a free silver declaration in the Democratic platform of 1900. During the consideration of contests before the Republican national committee the vote of Hawaii was as potent as New York. Arizona as that of California and Porto Rico and the Philippines as great as those of Minnesota and Wisconsin. And these votes of small political divisions offset the votes of the large states many times during the proceedings of the committee and convention.

A SCHOOL OF GREEN TURTLES.

Captain Dunbar of steamship Buckminster, which arrived in New York from Cuban ports, said that when 70 miles south of the Winter Quarter Shoals lightship, off the Virginia coast, she ran through a school of more than 150 green turtles, some of which were more than five feet long. It is unusual for turtles to travel so far north. Captain Dunbar thinks the Gulf Stream is working in northward at this point and that the turtles were in this current.

ARMY PLACES WITHHELD.

Taft's Veto of Appropriation Bill Will Prevent Promotion of a Number of Officers.

[Washington despatch to New York Tribune.]

One of the effects arising from the President's veto of the army appropriation bill will be withholding from the army some 25 places which were added by that legislation. When the House and Senate agreed to reduce the number of officers of the General Staff, it was provided that there should remain 25 officers, in addition to the two general officers, and these 25 were to be detailed from the line of the army—three from the grade of colonel, four from that of lieutenant-colonel, eight from that of major and 10 from that of captain and first lieutenant. Had the legislation been approved there would have resulted the promotion of three lieutenant colonels, seven majors, 15 captains and 25 vacancies in the grade of second lieutenant to be filled, ultimately, in the usual way by candidates from civil life, from the enlisted force and by graduates of the Military Academy.

In any event, there will probably be enough vacancies after the appointment of the West Pointers and the enlisted men to have another examination later this year of candidates from civil life. There are now 24 vacancies in the corps of engineers, 77 in the cavalry, 20 in the field artillery, 40 in the coast artillery and 134 in the infantry.

ECZEMA FROM TEETHING
"When my little girl was about eight months old, she was taken with a very irritating breaking out, which came on her face, neck and back. When she first came down with it, it came in little watery-like fesers under her eyes, and on her chin, then after a few days it would dry down in scaly, white scabs. In the daytime she was quite worrysome and would dig and scratch her face nearly all the time.
"I consulted our physician and found she was suffering from eczema, which he said came from her teething. I used the ointment he gave me and without any relief at all. Then I wrote for a book on Cuticura, and purchased some Cuticura Soap and Ointment at the drugstore. I did as I found directions in the Cuticura Booklet, and when she was one year old, she was entirely cured. Now she is three years and four months, and she has never been troubled with eczema since she was cured by the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment." (Signed) Mrs. Freeman Craver, 311 Lewis St., Syracuse, N. Y., May 8, 1911. Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Send to "Cuticura," Dept. KK, Boston, for a liberal sample of each, post-free, with 32-p. book on the skin.

BOTH RACES WON BY HARVARD CREWS

Yale Defeated in Freshmen and 'Varsity Events.

Hard Fought Contest Followed by an Easy Victory on the Thames.

NEW LONDON, June 21.—A hard fought victory, followed by an easy win, was scored by Harvard in the preliminary contests of today's annual regatta with Yale, that will reach its culmination in the 'Varsity race this afternoon. The Harvard Freshmen defeated the Yale Freshmen by a scant length, or a margin, which the timer placed at 2½ seconds. The official time was Harvard 10:52, Yale 10:54 1-2.

The Crimson four-oared 'Varsity crew rowed away from their opponents in the Yale shell and had 10 lengths to spare at the finish. The official time in this race was Harvard 11:24, Yale 11:56. Except at the very start the Harvard shell was always ahead of Yale in both races.

At the beginning of the Freshmen race underneath the drawbridge, Yale had a little the better of the contest for the first few strokes. The sturdy Harvard youngsters then buckled down to their work and from that time until the finish was reached they had good views of the brown backs of their opponents. Just before the flag fell, Yale spurted and made up almost a length in the last few strokes.

The times by half miles were: Half—Harvard 2:35; Yale 2:38. Mile—Harvard 5:17, Yale 5:21. Mile-and-a-half—Harvard 7:14, Yale 7:17. Two miles—Harvard 10.52; Yale 10:54 1-2.

The four-oared crews were waiting at the navy yard and 20 minutes after the finish of the Freshmen's contest the second race was on. Here Yale caught the water ahead of Harvard, only to be passed before six strokes had been rowed. The Crimson lead increased constantly and by the time the mile flag was reached it was only a question of how decisive would be the victory.

The times for the four-oared race were: Half mile—Harvard 2:32 1-2; Yale 2:35. Mile—Harvard 5:24. Yale 5:34. Mile-and-a-half—Harvard 8:15; Yale 8:32. Two miles—Harvard 11:24. Yale 11:55.

The two races were rowed under ideal conditions of both wind and water.

A CATCHER FOR THREE YEARS.

Walter Snell Elected Captain of Brown 1913 Base Ball Team.

PROVIDENCE, June 21.—Walter H. Snell, '13 of Brockton, Mass., will captain the Brown University base ball team next year, it was announced today. Snell has played catcher on the team for three years. He prepared at Phillips Andover.

THE COST OF WASTE.

Gobbling of the Greedy and Selfishness of the Wealthy Responsible For Much Distress.

[New York Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin.]

It costs more to live because the mass of the people live better and think they really must have many things in order to be comfortable which they could do without, if they had to, without feeling privation.

The improved standard of living is a desirable thing and pinching economy is not commendable when it is not necessary, though always maintaining a margin of earning above spending is always praiseworthy as well as prudent. But there is a great deal of extravagance and luxury which is wickedly wasteful. It uses up the materials, the substance that goes to the sustenance and comfort of people, and tends to increase inequality in the distribution of the fruits of labor. If half of that which is squandered in lavish and unwholesome living were left in the general supply instead of being inordinately consumed by the self-indulgent few, it would make a substantial difference in the price of things. Not only is much more devoured or used up than is wholesome for mankind, but a vast deal is thrown away in sheer waste. The expensive hotels and restaurants and the lordly mansions where banquets are given use up an immense share of the choicest products and materials of the depletion of the stock upon which those of modest means or small income must depend.

There is a fallacious idea of economic advantage in luxury and extravagance because it makes work and gives employment to many. There is no occasion to decry that which gratifies taste and contributes to refinement or elegance of living, but there is much that is sheer superfluity, which turns much material and labor to no use but the gratification of gross appetite or vulgar display. The labor employed in pandering to this kind of demand is worse than thrown away and if bestowed upon other lines of production would increase the supply and lower the cost of that which ministers to comfort. The grossness and selfishness of those who have more than enough, who do not mind what things cost or how much they pay for, are depriving a multitude of others of what they are better entitled to, because their extravagance takes all the best, depletes the stock and makes the inferior high priced.

The cost of high living, the lavish using up of the products of labor by those who can afford it is one of the causes of the high cost of living for those of small means. Another incident of the improved standard of living is that too little attention is given to making a little go far. Our people do not economize in the true sense of the word by making the most of what they have. The common people of France have a reputation for thrift and economy, acquired by a careful and prudent habit of wasting nothing and applying skill to making the best of their material. This is not meanness or penuriousness, unless carried to an extreme which the means of the person does not justify. It is getting comfort and ease out of a little by making much of it. Most people who have no superfluous income get much less out of what they have than they might by giving more thought and taking pains. There is more to divide than ever before and the individual shares are greater, though distributed with more inequality. Living costs more because people insist upon living better, which is not to be deprecated within the limits of moderation. It is the excess, the waste, the gobbling of the greedy or the heedless, and the little thought of those who have for those who have not, that is responsible for much privation and misery.

HADLEY'S MOTION LAID ON TABLE.

none of it had been given his sanction, either directly or indirectly.

Taking up a review of the situation as it appeared to him before today's session of the convention was called to order, Mr. McKinley declared that the Roosevelt forces were demoralized and disorganized to an extent which would preclude any further united action in or out of the convention. The Taft leaders went into conference early today for the purpose of advancing plans for both day and night sessions of the convention, with a view to winding up the convention certainly by Saturday night.

"There is absolutely no reason," said one of these leaders, "why these delegates should be forced to remain in Chicago over Sunday. Many of them who come from a long distance, have important business matters to attend to next week that demand their presence at home. Already they have given a solid week of their time to this convention, counting from the day they left their homes, and I see no reason for longer delaying the regular business of the convention. I believe the Roosevelt 'cyclone' has blown itself out and passed on."

However, as the hour for formal resumption of the convention session drew near there was increased discussion of just what action would be taken by the Roosevelt forces during the day. Repeated efforts were made to get from Colonel Roosevelt the details of his further plans, but without immediate avail.

Many were inclined to think that the plan of "passive resistance" mapped out by the Roosevelt managers would be discarded before it had been placed in fair working order. According to this plan the Roosevelt delegates were not to vote on motions connected with the work and organization of the convention, but were to place Roosevelt's name in nomination. Also, if a candidate is nominated with the votes of the alleged fraudulent delegates, it was announced that the Roosevelt forces would call a convention in Chicago for the first week in August to which all progressives will be invited and at which it is expected Roosevelt will be nominated for the Presidency. According to one of the progressive newspapers, Woodrow Wilson will be selected as Colonel Roosevelt's running mate.

With the approach of the time for nominations, United States Senator Kenyon and Congressman Prouty of Iowa were active in behalf of the candidacy of Senator Cummins. Both sides expected important developments today that might decide the chances of the Iowa Senator's success.

There were strong indications in the Taft camp also, that the leaders had gotten together on their program and the session of the convention today might bring forth a clean-cut outline of what finally these leaders intended to do. Final plans were discussed at a number of breakfast councils, during which communications were received from nearly all state leaders as to late developments last night.

TO IMPROVE NIAGARA FALLS.

Highest Rubble-Stone Wall in the World to Relieve Unsightliness Around Cataract.

What is believed to be the highest rubble-stone wall in the world is nearing completion at Niagara Falls and is expected to be finished by the first of September. It is 400 feet long and rises a sheer 200 feet against the almost pependicula bank of the gorge through which the river rushes half a mile below the cataract.

The wall is under construction by one of the electric power companies on the American side, and was suggested by the scenic committee appointed by the President of the United States to co-operate with existing agencies to make the surroundings of the Falls worthy of the cataract itself. For many years both banks of the river were notoriously unsightly, but thanks to the recently-developed Queen Victoria Niagara Falls Park on the Canadian side, the New York state reservation on the American side, and the assistance of the power companies owning property along the water front the environment of the cataract will soon be above criticism.

The wall in question is made out of huge pieces of stone of the same sort as that which goes to form the cliff itself, and originally blown out of it. The wall is 14 feet thick at the base, entirely concealing the pipes through which water rushes to the turbines below. In order to carry out the project for improving the gorge, the power company bought out five small and especially unsightly factories, replacing their variegated and unlovely architecture by its uniform and impressive front. It is expected that the wall will eventually stretch all the way from the power plant to the state reservation, thus overcoming the principal remaining defect in the surroundings of Niagara Falls.

Effort toward improving the environment of the stupendous cataract is the final step in the campaign to preserve the spectacle in perpetuity as one of the great natural wonders of the continent. Protection of the cataract itself has already been secured through the Canadian-American waterways treaty, which limits the water which may be diverted for power purposes to 20,000 cubic feet per second on the American side, and 36,000 cubic feet per second on the Canadian side.

This treaty cannot become fully operative in the United States until the expiration of the Burton law next spring. The allowance of 20,000 cubic feet per second on the American side is only 4,400 cubic feet more than the amount now actually in use. According to General Bixby, chief of engineers United States army, the slight additional diversion allowed cannot lower the American Falls more than an eighth of an inch, which means that its present splendor is permanently assured.

VERDICT FOR PLAINTIFF.

Jury Decides the Much Disputed and Intricate Bond Cases.

Closing Testimony and Arguments of Counsel on Either Side.

At 2:25 Judge Brown resumed the third trial of the bond cases in the superior court. Mr. Luther took the stand and said that he held certain conversation with Mr. Boyd after judgment had been entered, and he had said he was ready to pay up and wondered where Mr. Chase was. This was objected to, but after argument it was admitted. After this he saw Mr. Chase—another objection was overruled. Mr. Chase said, as to the bond, that he had been on the Duckworth case and failed to get around. Nothing was said about any change in the bond, or Mr. Borden. Mr. Boyd said he had only signed one bond. Witness was plaintiff who sued the Tallmans, and expects to recover if these bonds are held to be good.

Deputy Sheriff King was re-called by Mr. MacLeod. He said he met Mr. Boyd twice in the court house and Mr. Chase at the jail; never met either on Broadway.

Frederick W. Wilkinson, chauffeur, a new witness, took the stand. He took Mr. King out into the country and to Tallman's farm. They went to Mr. Borden's, taking Mr. Tallman. Stopped there a minute. No paper was shown to Mr. Borden.

In cross-examination witness said he has been in Newport all his life. Never testified in the case before. Was summoned Wednesday morning by Mr. King. Saw Mr. Borden twice on the day in question. Did not hear what was said the first time. Mr. Tallman lives at Tallman's switch.

Mr. MacLeod rested and Mr. Boyd was re-called for one or two questions.

Then Mr. Harvey argued, from 3:05, claiming that changes in the bonds had made them of no effect. There are two forms of bond, one to satisfy judgment, the other to restore goods attached. If the goods be worth $400 and the judgment be $2,500, it makes a big difference which form of bond has been given. It is not for a sheriff to decide the form, and a bond may not be altered after it is given. If the three diagonal lines drawn across one paragraph of the bonds were not there when the bonds were signed, the case falls. Three reputable citizens, 40, 50, and 60 years of age, say there were no seals on the bonds when they saw it, and no marks. Mr. Boyd says he read the paragraph about returning the goods and found no lines across it. John L. Borden saw the bond without marks or seals. Mr. King contradicts all these. He says the Tallmans signed first; others say differently.

Mr. Harvey produced a magnifying glass and claimed that it showed that the Tallman names were written after the others. There is no "notation" of changes before signing, as lawyers note them on papers. The seals were not there when the names were signed—so Mr. Harvey claimed. That makes the alleged bond worthless. They said John L. Borden was going on the bond. They didn't get him; they tried to do so. The fact that they did not do what they said they would makes the bond worthless. Even if there was an attempt to settle up, it makes no difference. The seal which came off, Mr. Harvey claimed, partly covered a part of one of the signatures, and evidently Miss Tallman's name was crowded in after the other four had signed.

The real estate attached that day is still held. The sheriffs are merely nominal parties. A verdict against defendants will make innocent men suffer. If the verdict is for the defendants the bond as originally given (to be responsible for the goods and chattels) can be enforced, giving Lincoln & Hood and Luther all the security they ever had. No juror would wish to be confronted by a note for $3,000 if he had made it for $300.

After a 10-minute recess Mr. MacLeod argued from 4:05 in favor of the bonds. Whenever a man goes on a bond he knows he may have to pay it some day, and if he is an honorable man, and that day comes, he pays it. Unless Mr. King (not Tallman) made Mr. Boyd think that Mr. Borden was going on the bond, that point is of no effect. As to the allegation that the bonds were changed, it is the easiest charge to make—and the hardest to disprove—that the lines crossing out the paragraph in the bond were not there when the bond was signed. The new evidence of the chauffeur shows that the only time the Tallmans had to sign was when the sheriff saw them before seeing the others who signed.

As to the seals, Mr. MacLeod used the magnifying glass to prove that the one at the end of Miss Tallman's name was there when she signed, for, he said, a slight nick in the seal appears, just where the final "N" ends abruptly at the seal. This proves that there was at least one seal on the paper when Boyd and Chase signed and, Mr. MacLeod claimed, if there was but one seal on the paper when they signed, it was good for all who signed the paper.

The return of the writ shows that the sheriff had taken a bond to satisfy judgment. This is the form of bond the sheriff always takes; the only one the lawyers desire. Long ago Mr. Chase admitted that this was their liability. Mr. Boyd knew a month after the bond was given, that Mr. Chase and not Mr. Borden was his co-surety; he made no objection and his subsequent acts notified the substitution—if it ever was to be considered such.

It must not go out that a bond taken by a Rhode Island sheriff can be lightly set aside. The sheriff is a party, because the real parties, depending on this bond, have lost their chance to realize in the case and can hold the sheriff responsible.

Mr. MacLeod closed at 4:42 and the court adjourned to 9:30 a. m. Friday, after cautioning the jury about talking or hearing any talk about the case. If a paper having reference to the case were picked up, what it said about it should not be read.

This morning, shortly after the opening of the court, Judge Brown charged the jury in the bond case, speaking at length on the law of bonds.

At 10:40 the jury went out under the care of Keeper Gomes and returned at 11:45 with a verdict for the plaintiff.

George St. Peter, who was found guilty of maintaining a nuisance in Tiverton, was sentenced to 30 days in the Providence county jail and to pay $100 and costs.

It is probable that the Anthony Boyd case will be taken to the supreme court.

"WE WANT TEDDY."

Great Clamor for Roosevelt After Short Afternoon Session.

CHICAGO, June 20.—Five minutes was the entire duration of both of today's sessions of the convention. The afternoon session was remarkable not so much for the fact that it lasted less than one minute, but for the extraordinary conditions which ensued on its adjournment.

A thunderstorm had broken, and the big crowd found itself marooned in the big convention hall. The thousands had to kill time or take a worse ducking than they were receiving through the open skylights of the great building.

Almost with the fall of Chairman Root's gavel, there arose a pandemonium of cheering, which lasted almost as long as that of yesterday. It had scarcely a definite cause, though its immediate occasion was the effort of a man in the west gallery to swing the great gathering into unison with the cry "We want Teddy."

The Roosevelt clamor started all right, but almost immediately the La Follette, Hadley and Cummins enthusiasts began an opposition turmoil, with the result that within less than a minute there was simply one meaningless chaos of noise. Presently a group of men in the south gallery, back of the platform, brought four or five megaphones into play with "We want Taft."

The smashing rainstorm outside continued, so the crowd simply stood where they were and shouted, each for his own favorite.

Under cover of the racket, and at first unnoticed by the crowd, there began to gather on the platform a body of big policemen, first one, then another, then by threes, till in a few minutes there were ranged along the curved edge and at the back of the platform some 20 blueclad guardians of the peace. They were under personal command of Assistant Chief Schuettler.

Then it began to be noticed that Chairman Root, Secretary Gleason, Sergeant-at-Arms Stone and his assistant, Col. Thayer, had never left the platform at all. And the crowd generally understood the cause of this conspicuous show of force.

When the doors of the Coliseum were thrown open at 2 p. m., with still two hours to spare before the gavel should fall, the people began to pour in rapidly. At least a thousand never left their seats at all. No man or woman who went through that struggle for admission this morning could face without a qualm the prospects of repeating it—on the same day, any way. So there was a good-sized audience all through the long wait, to hear the band which in its lofty little box, between the big flags upon the north wall enlivened the interval with popular music.

The heat and humidity of the day increased after noon and men began to shed their coats. Thus far Chicago has given the convention delightful coolness, contrasting most agreeably with the smothering humidity of the last two days of Republican convention week four years ago.

As the afternoon wore on the western sky threatened a thunderstorm. It began to rain sharply at 3 o'clock. The crowd about the doors never budged. Open skylights let rain in upon the crowd, all along the centre of the hall and on the west side the water blew in through the windows. Umbrellas were opened all over the hall. But wet or dry, nobody would take a chance of losing his seat and 15 minutes before the hour for convening every seat was filled.

No sooner had Chairman Root called the convention to order than the Taft floor leader was recognized to move an adjournment until 11 o'clock tomorrow to allow the credentials committee to complete its labors. The motion prevailed without objection and the crowd, disappointed but good-natured, began filing out.

A Roosevelt enthusiast in the gallery set up the cry "We want Teddy" as the crowd moved toward the exits. The cry was taken up among the colonel's supporters on the floor. Taft followers then started an opposition demonstration, a heavy downpour of rain outside stopping the exodus. Not to be outdone, the Wisconsin delegation entered the competition with the cry: "We want La Follette."

The din was terrific. On the floor the demonstration was led by the Roosevelt delegation. Some one there made an immediate response to the gallery, "We want Teddy." They responded in chorus, at the same time high above their heads a picture of their candidate. In a minute the Roosevelt men throughout the hall were athrill with enthusiasm, and 300 or 400 men marched around the hall, shouting for the ex-President, while the enthusiast in the gallery led the general demonstration, using his hat as a baton.

The cheering continued, and the five minutes expired with the lights still gleaming brightly. Assistant Chief of Police Schuettler declined to make the crowd move out while the downpour was so heavy.

Comparative quiet had been restored 35 minutes after the demonstration started.

Assurance from the police that the rain had abated gave the enthusiasts something else to think about, and they moved out slowly.

One hour after adjournment the crowd practically had been dispersed, the excitement had subsided, and those who had looked for a serious disturbance went their way disappointed.

NEW YORK LETTER.

Gun Fights Between Factional Gangs Cause Talk of Vigilantes.

Hotel Patrons Relieved at Failure of Waiters' Strike—Militant Feminine Methods.

[Correspondence of The News.]

NEW YORK, June 20.—As a result of the gun fights between factional gangs which have made various sections of New York resemble a mining camp of the wildest times, suggestions are actually being put forward here for the organization of a committee of vigilantes, similar to those of early frontier days, for the purpose of ridding the city of the gang leaders whose highest ambition seems to be the taking of human life. A week of pitched battles between armed gangsters, with the most melodramatic settings, has at last awakened the city to the necessity of freeing itself from the presence of these bands. For years it has been more or less known that such bands existed and that death was likely to be the lot of any one incurring their displeasure. Of late, however, they have been settling feuds by the revolver and knife method at such a rate that citizens in general have become thoroughly alarmed by the week-long battle which has been going on.

Men marked for death have been shot down from passing taxicabs in which the assassins promptly made their escape in a guerilla warfare unequalled in the annals of the city. Even personal peculiarities have been made the cause of attack as is evidenced by the fact that one gang leader, now lying in a hospital with several bullet wounds, only shortly before he was shot slashed a Coney Island singer four times across the face because he did not like the song which was being rendered. Two members of another gang, who were threatened with expulsion as a result of the belief among their fellow gangsters that they might show the white feather, went out and deliberately shot down a man as an indication of their fitness for membership; a meeting between members of the various rival gangs has been the signal for general shooting.

As a result law and order have become a by-word in the districts that the gangs have chosen in which to demonstrate their contempt for human life, and New York finds itself in the position of a border town. So outrageous have conditions become that the spectacle of vigilante committees cleaning up the town in the old frontier fashion may yet be afforded unless relief through other channels is soon forthcoming.

Fervent sighs of relief are being heard from hotel patrons here, as a result of the crumbling of the waiters' strike which has caused more or less disorder and discomfort in the majority of the city's hostelries and restaurants of late. It is not the inconvenience in the securing of meals and other service which has made the hotel customer uneasy, but the realization that if the strike were successful he would be the person to foot the bill, since, as is pointed out by one of the city's best known hotel frequenters, it is the patron who pays the servants. Statements made public during the strike reveal the fact that while the waiter in one of the larger hotels may receive for wages $25 or $30 a month, his tips average from $100 to $200 for the same period.

As indicative of the extent to which the public actually pays the waiter's wages, the case of one attendant who refused to walk out from a cafe in which no food but only liquid refreshments are served is cited. During three days his tips are reported to have amounted to $39. Had the strike been successful the fate of the guest would have been even harder. Men who have studied the situation carefully assert hat it is the result of an economic perversion imported from Europe where employes, in addition to deriving their compensation from the "guests," are in many cases compelled to pay for the occupation which gives them these opportunities. But while the hotel and restaurant patrons have cause for relief so far as the result of the strike is concerned, the abolishment of tips about which so much has been heard of late seems just as far distant as ever.

The entire force of Fifth Avenue special police is under arrest and employing counsel in an endeavor to win the right to protect shoppers and at the same time look like real cops. The difficulty has arisen between the regular force and the specials because the latter's uniform and shield so closely resemble that of the "finest" as to be readily mistaken for the regulation garb. That is the reason assigned for the arrest of the specials, but it is hinted that it is really a beauty contest.

The Fifth Avenue detail of regular police are selected for their fine appearance and assiduously cultivate majesty and nonchalance. The specials were preceded by boastful announcements that an Apollo-like standard would be set. The promoters of the special service detail neglected the formality of securing the approval of the police commissioner and left a technical opening for the opposition of the regulars. This led to a curious game of tag up and down Fifth avenue under official sanction. One regular cop was assigned to each special and directed to remain constantly within 10 paces. A part of the special's duty lay in assisting timid pedestrians to cross Fifth avenue without loss of life or limb, but when the special assumed the majesty of the regular and held up traffic the regular was close at hand to guard the prerogatives of the "finest." However, the specials are to be permitted to continue on duty if they submit to the handicap of no uniforms, caps or shields. About mid-June the question of habiliments will be given a court hearing which may result in a beauty war to the death through a re-furnishing of the specials in the contested get-up.

A novel record has just been completed here through the tabulation of the number of persons and vehicles passing through various points in the city. As a result of the count, the busiest spot in the city has been located at the corner of Broadway and Fulton street in the heart of the down-town district. By actual count 113,111 persons passed this corner in 10 hours, or at the rate of 188 a minute. The next highest count showed 75,995 at a point on Forty second street. This total, however, is largely augmented by the proximity of a great railway terminal building. Greeley square, which is in the heart of the retail shopping district, accounted for the passing of 72,500 persons in 10 hours.

As might be expected, the busiest point for vehicular traffic is not in the same district as that most thickly crowded by pedestrians. It is located at the corner of Fifth avenue and Thirty fourth street. During 10 hours 7,521 vehicles passed this point, or about 13 a minute, a figure which illustrates strikingly the reason why crossing the avenue has come to be regarded as a feat of daring. The next greatest counts showed an almost equal congestion as far uptown as Sixty sixth street, where 7,318 vehicles were checked off.

That the London suffragettes have nothing on the militant feminine spirit of New York has just been demonstrated to the sorrow of the up-town butchers. An irate delegation of Bronx matrons decided to register a protest against the high price of meat and hinted to one butcher that he should close up shops and throw away his meat. The proprietor declined, and as the last of the protesting delegation reached the sidewalk a bucket was hurled through the show window of the store. A round of the shops of the neighborhood was made as a warning to the butchers to lower prices or expect another call. As a further argument kerosene was surreptiously poured over some of the meat. In several large apartment buildings in the storm centre groups of 25 or more families have agreed to do without meat until prices come down. The belligerent movement is chiefly in the Bronx, but by more pacific methods Brooklyn is getting into the fight through the housewives' league, with the result the black cloud of a boycott is hovering over butcherdom.

10—Initial dealings in the stock market today reflected general steadiness, all the active issues and a number of specialties recording fractional gains. Trading was moderately active.

Noon—Today's early stock market showed some further disposition to detach itself from the political situation, although the prospects of an extension of the deliberations at Chicago were not well received. Trading in the first hour was fairly impressive and the general movement of prices was upward, with more than the usual activity and prominence in the Southern Railroad issue. Coal stocks also tended higher, with recurrent strength in Can and some of the less conspicuous industrials and specialties. Steel reflected support on short covering in connection with possible price advances in the coming week. Bonds were steady. Money on call 2¾ per cent, steady. Prime mercantile paper 4 to 4½ per cent. ## CLEAN-UP DAY SATURDAY.

Improvement Already Noted, Decreasing the Work of Volunteers.

City to be Divided Into Districts—Board of Health Circular Regarding Flies.

Saturday is to be Newport's "clean-up" day. Already, since the announcement of the date for a general cleaning of back yards, alleys and odd corners about the city, there has been a fairly lively movement among householders and shopkeepers to do a little advance work. In consequence many places which have hitherto been not only an eyesore but a menace to health, and happiness one might well say, have been cleaned and the volunteers saved much work in removing the accumulated rubbish to the dumps.

The work Saturday will be entirely of a volunteer nature, but there have been many offers and the effect promises to be far-reaching and effective. The actual work will be done by boys who have offered their services, not only members of the Boy Scouts but other school boys, who will be under the direction of experienced older persons. They will assemble at the Townsend Industrial School at 8 o'clock and be organized into groups to cover certain districts. Each will be armed with a garden rake and a gunny sack, which will complete their equipment. They will be divided into groups of six or more, each to be led and directed by a man, a dozen or more having volunteered.

The compact part of the city has been divided into districts and each group of workers has one or more districts assigned to it. When a yard is cleaned the rubbish will be put out on the sidewalk in bags or barrels and these will be removed to the dump in teams. A number of automobiles have been offered to assist in the work. The clean-up will be concluded at 12 o'clock.

In the afternoon the boys who do the cleaning will be given a picnic at "Bethshan-in-the-Woods," going out on a special car. At the grove there will be athletic sports, base ball games and other contests.

The Board of Health is distributing the following circular in relation to the fly nuisance and menace:

Don't allow flies in your house.

Don't permit them near your food—especially milk.

Don't buy foodstuffs where flies are tolerated.

Don't eat where flies have access to the food.

Flies are the most dangerous insects known to man.

Flies are the filthiest of all vermin. They are born in filth, live on filth and carry filth around with them. They are maggots before they are flies.

Flies are known to be carriers of millions of death-dealing disease germs. They leave some of these germs wherever they alight.

Flies may infect the food you eat. They come to your kitchen or to your dining table, fresh from the privy vault, from the garbage box, from the manure pile, from the cuspidor, from decaying animal or vegetable matter, or from the contagious sick-room with this sort of filth on their feet and in their bodies, and they deposit it on your food, and you do swallow filth from privy vaults, etc., etc., if you eat food that has come in contact with flies.

Flies may infect you with tuberculosis typhoid fever, scarlet fever, diphtheria, and other infectious diseases. They have the habit of feasting on tuberculosis sputum and other discharges of those sick with infectious diseases, and then going direct to your food, to your drink, to the lips of your sleeping child, or perhaps to a small open wound on your hands or face. When germs are deposited in milk they multiply very fast; therefore milk should never be exposed to flies.

Eliminate the Breeding Places of Flies.

Flies breed in filth.

Allow no filth or decaying matter of any kind to accumulate on or near your premises.

Sprinkle kerosene over garbage and contents of privy vaults. Keep garbage receptacles tightly covered; clean the cans every day, the boxes at least every week. Keep the ground around garbage boxes clean.

Keep manure in screened pit or tightly covered vault. Manure should be removed every week, at least.

Burn all refuse—such as old bedding, paper, straw, etc.

Pour kerosene into the drains. Keep sewerage system in good order; repair all leaks immediately.

Clean cuspidors every day. Keep 5 per cent solution of carbolic acid in them all the time. Get rid of sawdust boxes used as cuspidors—they're insanitary.

Permit no dirt to accumulate in corners, behind doors, back of radiators, under stoves, etc.

Flies in the home indicate a careless housekeeper.

Remember: No dirt—no flies.

If there is a nuisance in the neighborhood notify the Board of Health, City of Newport, R. I.

What To Do To Get Rid of Flies.

Screen your windows and doors. Do it early before fly time and keep screens up until snow falls.

Screen all food, especially milk. Do not eat food that has been in contact with flies.

Screen the baby's bed and keep flies away from the baby's bottle, the baby's food and the baby's "comforter."

Keep flies away from the sick, especially those ill with typhoid fever, scarlet fever, diphtheria and tuberculosis. Screen the patient's bed. Kill every fly that enters the sick room. Immediately disinfect and dispose of all discharges.

Catch the flies as fast as they appear. Use liquid poisons, sticky fly papers and traps.

Place this fly poison in saucers throughout the house: Two teaspoonfuls of formaldehyde in a pint of water, sweetened with sugar.

To quickly clear rooms of flies, burn pyrethrum powder. Sprinkle the powder on live coals carried on a metal shovel. The fumes cause flies to fall in a stunned condition. They must then be swept up and destroyed. Best results are obtained by darkening the room, allowing only ray of light to enter at edge of window shade. Flies, in attempting to escape the fumes, will seek ray of light at window. This simplifies their collection.

Conditions on Golden Hill Street and on the Cliffs Called Their Attention.

The Board of Aldermen met Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. The members were promptly on hand and for more than an hour the session lasted, there being considerable discussion in the course of the deliberations as to what should be done. President Shepley presided.

The usual weekly pay rolls were approved, as follows: Streets and highways, $2,699.25; police, $822.15; fire department, $305.21; city officers, $262.50; firemen in theatres, $18. The last monthly pay roll of the school department for the school year, $10,400.75, was also approved.

The petition of Mrs. Allan L. Friend, for a sewer in Bush street, about 140 feet from Mann avenue, was referred to the street commissioner with power to act.

Licenses were granted to Abraham Solomon for junk gathering, Wheeler M. Maddox and Catherine A. Byrne for peddling, the Perry Athletic Club for boxing, Mrs. W. J. Lansyman, D. E. Watterson, Lee Ring, D. E. Sullivan and Fred Priester for fireworks, and James H. Dennison for gasoline.

The following communication was received from Severin Olson, relating to an old cause of complaint by him, and referred to the street commissioner:

"As I understand Saturday to be 'cleaning-up day,' I wish to ask you to attend to the land in front of the Curran house and the side of my house on Golden Hill street, of which the fence was removed. It has never been cleaned up there and the rubbish there makes it unfit to remain there. It lies up against my house and smells and rots there. The water runs in my cellar and it damages my house. I have notified the city solicitor, park and street commissioners and neither seems to do anything. Hope you will attend to this matter at once."

The following communication to the mayor from Mrs. Emma C. Cortazzo was read:

"I enclose you a copy of a letter I recently sent to the street commissioner and his reply, and in pursuance of my object I address you on the same matter, of which I think I have covered most of the points in the enclosed letter. I merely wish to emphasize to you the fact of our entire deprivation of all the taxpayer's usual city privileges, such as highway maintenance, lighting and police protection, through which absence I need scarcely say my place is now practically untenable. The absence of light especially makes it dangerous and I am obliged to provide lanterns whenever expecting guests after dark. I may add that my enforced absence from Newport during the last few years has been the reason that I have not gone into this matter earlier, following the applications made to the city jointly with the late Mrs. Robinson (owner of the Cliff cottages) at different times for a gravel trap, lights and the taking over of the avenue by the city."

Accompanying was a copy of Mrs. Cortazzo's letter to the street commissioner, asking if the city could not take Sea View avenue as a public highway, and the street commissioner's reply, that he had nothing to do with the acceptance of streets, that this was a private way and that she should write the mayor and Board of Aldermen in regard to such taking over.

Alderman Hughes said any one acquainted with the locality could confirm all Mrs. Cortazzo said. The place is really dangerous after dark. Some provision should be made for the proper carrying away of rain water, which now plunges over the cliffs, leaving gullies. He realized that it is private roperty, but it is frequented by many as a short cut to the beach. The places there have not been rested and the condition of the road is perhaps responsible.

The city solicitor was called in and said the city could fix up a man's back yard, but it has no legal right to spend money in improving private ways. Even if it has spent money thus in the past, that did not make it legal. The matter was finally referred to the alderman from the Fourth ward and the city solicitor, to look into the situation and suggest some relief.

From the committee on hall and playgrounds for the fleet, Alderman Albro reported that he had seen Dr. Huntington, who had given the free use of the Cloyne School grounds, provided the city would make good any damage. He had seen Dr. Darrah of the playground committee of the School Committee, who told him the use of the playground on Broadway would be given free except on certain days already spoken for. He would tell him more definitely Friday. There must be no play on it on Sunday. Alderman Albro suggested that while no mention was made of Sunday

HOSPITAL NURSES' GRADUATION.

Addresses and Music, Followed by Reception for Members of the Class.

The graduating exercises of the Newport Hospital School for Nurses were held Thursday evening at the Nurses' Home, which was made beautiful with flowers. The program opened with a march by the Harry K. Howard orchestra and prayer by Rev. Franklin G. McKeever, D. D., after which Miss Mary M. Riddle, superintendent of the Newton Hospital, spoke of hospitals as not existing for the nurses and the nurses as not existing for the hospitals. Hospitals are established to care for the sick and the nurse gives her service for value received in training—in increased manual dexterity, observation and instruction. Miss Riddle made a plea for the raising of the social position of the nurse and for educated girls to go into training. In conclusion she urged the members of the graduating class to keep faith with themselves and their profession, to keep their ideals and enthusiasm, to cultivate public spirit and to be self-less.

Mr. T. Frederick Harry, Jr., sang "I Had a Flower," Novelli, "Romance," Debussy, and "A Song of Faith," Chaminade, and Mr. Rowland G. Hazard after a witty introduction spoke from the point of view of a layman. He enjoined upon the nurses the cultivation of self-effacement, superabounding cheerfulness, tact, the study of the individual case and holding ever to the right.

Mr. William P. Buffum, president of the hospital, presented the diplomas and badges which, he was sure, had been earned. This year's class makes the number who have been graduated from the Newport Hospital about 150.

Mr. Harry sang Von Flelitz's "Elfland Cycle," "Silent Woe," "On the Shore of the Lake," "Anathema" and "Resignation" and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Dr. McKeever.

At the close of the exercises a reception was tendered the members of the graduating class—Frances Langstroth Hooper, Alice Russell Hickson, Blanche Louise Wells, Elizabeth Sanford Blye, Evelyn Lake Gardner, Helen Blanche Clarke, Mary Bertha Appleton and Margaret Isabel Harris. There was dancing and a buffet collation—salads, rolls, sandwiches, ice cream and cake.

MANY HEAR DR. MAGUIRE.

Sings, Describes and Vividly Acts Some of His Experiences in Middle Africa.

A good audience at he First Baptist Church Thursday evening heard Rev. Dr. Gabriel Maguire sing, describe and vividly act part of what he had heard and seen and done in the middle of Africa, where he crossed Stanley's trail, and found the ruins which the "stone breaker," as the terrified natives had named Stanley, had left behind him. The speaker's researches in Africa have earned for him a Fellowship in the English Royal Geographical Society, and he is the possessor of at least seven scars from which his blood has flowed, to be mingled with that of an equal number of African chiefs, thus making him their blood-brother.

One of his experiences was to meet the tribe of pigmies, or dwarfs, the most dreaded people of Africa. Each has his poisoned arrows, exactly as long as he is high, even to a quarter inch. Some were shown—about two feet long. They slay by treachery and poison and killed more of Stanley's men than did any other African race.

As a sequence to Dr. Maguire's work in a virgin field, where the most horrible practices were the usual routine and God was practically unknown, a prosperous Christian work, with schools, etc., is now going on.

As Dr. Maguire held his audience for more than an hour, it was as if one saw the very scenes and heard the very voices of the great continent, whose midnight darkness was really felt by the listeners. He showed many specimens brought from Africa, some of them almost blood-curdling to contemplate.

While here Dr. Maguire was guest of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Seabury, Jr.

COMMENCEMENT AT ROGERS.

Annual Graduation Exercises With Award of Scholarship Medals.

Dean Meiklejohns Address on "Mission of the Teacher" Clear, Original and Earnest.

The annual Commencement exercises of the Rogers High School took place this morning in the assembly hall. There was as usual a large attendance of friends and relatives of the pupils, the audience with the members of the two higher classes filling the entire seating capacity. The class numbers 45, of whom 33 are girls and 13 boys. The motto is "Let deeds prove."

Head Master Frank E. Thompson presided and the exercises consisted of the singing of seven selections by the scholars an address by Alexander Meiklejohn, Ph. D., dean of Brown University and President-elect of Amherst College, the award of the Norman, Read and King medals and the presentation of diplomas.

The exercises opened with a song, "Summer," by Herbert, sung by the glee club of the school. Alexander Meiklejohn, Ph. D., late dean of Brown University and President-elect of Amherst, spoke on "The Mission of the Teacher."

The teacher, a relatively inconspicuous person, has an important part in the social scheme. The task of education which we Americans are undertaking is the education of an entire people—a task which would stagger any nation. Our agent is the teacher, whom we leave alone to a large extent. The teacher is preparing boys and girls for living, the fundamental test of all teaching being the doing of tasks better than they would have been done without teaching.

If the teaching of living is the aim of all institutions, what is living? In this world people are engaged in many activities—doing things which they like to do and things which they do not like to do. Doing what you like to do is the play of life and doing what you do not like to do is the work of life. Playing and working are all that we do in this life.

Which is important as compared with the other, the play or the work? The play, surely. Those things which get at the heart of things are good of themselves. Men work that they may play, and for no other reason. To work is not good, except in so far as it leads to some one's play. The play element in life is large enough to justify the work element, says the optimist, while the pessimist says that the play element does not justify the work element. A human life to succeed must be good in or for itself, not merely useful.

The teacher must give to the pupil the knowledge of playing at living. The teacher must know what is good and must teach the pupil to enjoy life. Many people who work steadily for years know and care for nothing else and do not know what to do on a holiday. As a rule our people do not know how to enjoy worship, literature, art, friendship, music. Our children need to be taught how to enjoy themselves. Only something that is good in itself makes life serious. The teacher must show the pupil how to play the game of thinking, speaking, and reading, and to enjoy it as such. The boys and girls must, of course, be taught to work as well as play. In working self-denial is necessary, and often this is not exercised and the goal sought is not won. All are dependent upon the work of others in order that our pleasures may be realized. Pupils should do as they are told and should be useful to themselves and their fellows.

Both the ultimate and immediate things should be taught. The teacher should be more recognized and appreciated. Because of this lack of appreciation young men are refusing to go into teaching and the ministry, the other teaching profession. This must be understood in order that the mission of the teacher may be appreciated.

Dean Meiklejohn's address was clear, original and earnest and was heard with much interest, as the hearty applause showed.

After the singing by a girls' quartet of "Moonlight Song" by Storie and "Good Bye" by Linders, the Edward A. Kink medal for Greek was awarded to Charles Lawton Sherman by Head Master Thompson.

The Norman medals for scholarship were presented by Superintendent Lull, the first to Helen Muenchinger and the second to Katharine Amelia Kelley. Honorable mention was also made of the work of Loraine Augusta Sullivan.

Superintendent Lull also presented the Norman medals for excellence in English composition to Helen Muenchinger, first, and Helen Montague Powell, second. Honorable mention was again made of Loraine Augusta Sullivan.

The Read medal for excellence in mathematics was awarded to Alfred Richards Cory, Jr., of Jamestown.

A double quartet of boys and girls sang "When Summer Just Ahead," by Carlo, and prizes were awarded to Margaret Bertille Halpin and Loraine Augusta Sullivan by the Daughters of the American Revolution, being presented by Mrs. Clara E. Dennis. Honorable mention was given Natalie Mason.

Nine volumes were given to the school by the class of 1912, and Mr. Bradford Norman during the year has given $250 to Mr. Thompson for books. Mr. Norman has also loaned a map of the Panama canal to the school.

A statue of Abraham Lincoln was presented by John Montrose Hoar to the school in behalf of the graduating class, Mr. Thompson responding in his usual kindly helpful vein.

After two more selections had been sung by the boy's quartet the diplomas were awarded by Dr. Christopher F. Barker, chairman of the School Committee, to the following graduates:

John Eric Oscar Anderson, Harold Congdon Anthony, Laura Stone Barker, Sadie Bloch, David Wallace Brawley, Margaret Helen Burns, Emily Elizabeth Carroll, Alfred Richards Cory, Jr., Jessie Miller Cowles, Catherine Adelaide Dwyer, Robert Allen Ebbs, Charles Steele Eddy, Joseph Forrester, Jr., Earl Bennett Frank, Ruth Findlay Haire, Gladys Hall, Margaret Bertille Halpin, John Montrose Hoar, Jessie Marjorie Holm, Amy Katherine Howland, Clara May Holtland, Henrietta Kane.

Katharine Amelia Kelley, Nathalie Havemeyer Mason, Gertrude Adriana McCastur, Marion Fraser McLean, James Edward Minkler, Helen Muenchinger, Charlotte Josephine Nason, Catherine Margaret Nicol, Sadie Loretta O'Hanley, Isabelle Dorothea O'Sullivan, Nellie Paquin, Helen Montague Powell, Aline Phelps Price, Carlo Canlo Russo, Nora Katherine Shea, Charles Lawton Sherman, Mary Alice Smith, Daniel Francis Sullivan, Loraine Augusta Sullivan, Pauline Dorothy Treichel, Gladys Lillian Underwood, Rose Wilsker, Helen Lillian Yeszeff.

The exercises closed with the singing of "Springtime Reveries," Parker, and the benediction pronounced by Rev. Emery H. Porter, D. D., of the School Committee.

LEFT A GOOD IMPRESSION.

The Young Buffalo Wild West Has Some Features of Unusual Interest and Thrilling Scenes.

The Young Buffalo Wild West played to two audiences Thursday afternoon and evening, and left a good impression. The show gave all that was expected of it and the people apparently were satisfied. As usual, there were those who said they didn't think much of it, while others admitted that they thought they had received their money's worth, as much as they ever did. The show aims to satisfy the natural bent for the thrilling and the unconventional, and to eliminate the necessity of sitting through a variety of commonplace acts which people care little about. It does not carry all the features of a Barnum-Bailey circus, but did have some others of unusual interest.

The opening number might be called a panoramic picture of the far West, in review. It consisted of a procession of the various characters, representing the period when the white man was first hewing his way in these vast domains, and introducing skilled riders, scouts, Indians, cowboys, cowgirls, rangers, sharpshooters, vaqueros, and the 20-ox team, driven by Colonel Stevens, the veteran ox driver of the Civil war.

Some of the features were the daredevil hold-up of the overland stage coach by road agents and the repulse of the outlaws by the cowboys; the pony express in the days of '49, showing the manner of mail transportation and the rapid exchange of riders to fresh mounts at relay points. There were to be seen also the characteristic war dances of the Indians and the remarkable fancy trick equestrianism by Cossacks, cavalrymen, cowboys and cowgirls. Annie Oakley, "the peerless wing and rifle shot," was also there, and of course Colonel Frederick Cummins himself made his appearance, carrying his arm in a sling as the result of a recent fall from his horse. The breaking and taming of broncbos was another of the thrilling sights, one of the acts introducing an intrepid female rider.

The side show carried the usual features with some additions.

After the evening performance a throng followed the procession as it made its way to the depot.

TITUS BANNER WON BY CAREY SCHOOL.

The banner offered by Mr. H. A. Titus as a prize for the school having the largest percentage of boys entered in the Grammar Schol athletic meet goes to Carey, according to the figures given out by Mr. Slocum of the Young Men's Christian Association. Not quite half, or 47 per cent of the Carey boys were entered. Cranston had the next largest proportion, 35 per cent; Coggeshall 29, Lenthal 22, Potter 20, Coddington 19, Clarke 18, Calvert 17, and Thayer 12.

NOT GUILTY PLEAS.

The police court report this morning was a continuous record of "not guilty" pleas. There were two women, gathered in this morning and charged with being lewd and wanton, both of whom said not guilty. A man charged with assault said the same. There was one drunken man in Thursday night and he did not have a chance to say not guilty, for he was allowed to go. The cutting affar or assault took place in a pool room on Long wharf about 11 o'clock Thursday night. A white lad was slashed across the face by a colored man, a pocket knife being used. Dr. Sherman took six stitches in the wound.
